Masters at mime

Mime, an ancient art form with contemporary ideas, will be introduced to Sikeston residents and students during the week of Oct. 12, when Sophie Wibaux and Bert Houle perform here. The performances are sponsored locally by the Sikeston Arts and Education Council and Missouri State Council on the Arts. The artists will perform during school hours at Sikeston elementary schools and Sikeston Junior High School and will present a public performance at 7:30 p.m. Oct. 16 at Sikeston Activity Center.

Costs of farm, industr goods push index up

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rising prices for farm products and industrial goods pushed the nation's wholesale price index up six-tenths of one per cent in September, the Labor Department reported today.

The September increase in wholesale prices was slightly below the August gain of eight-tenths of one per cent, despite a 4.3 per cent increase in prices for farm products, especially for vegetables, milk and livestock.

Prices of industrial commodities in September increased seven-tenths of one per cent, the largest increase since last November when they rose eight-tenths of one per cent. Prices of fuels and metals led the increase in industrial goods.

Prices of farm products had decreased 1.5 per cent in August, while industrial prices had risen six-tenths of one per cent.

The Labor Department said it was unusual that although prices of farm products and industrial goods increased in September, the over-all increase in prices was below the August increase.

This occurred because the over-all index is adjusted independently for seasonal price variations, instead of being adjusted on the basis of its individual components.

The Labor Department said the procedure can lead to contradictory results in times when prices fluctuate widely, as they have in recent months. The department said it plans to revise its procedures in 1976 to eliminate such contradictions.

Another barometer of the nation's economic activity will be announced Friday when the Labor Department reports on the unemployment rate in September.

The jobless rate is not expected to reveal any major changes in the continuing problem of unemployment.

Unemployment was 8.4 per cent of the labor force — about eight million workers — in August. Wholesale prices in August increased eight-tenths of 1 per cent.

For the three-month period ending in August, wholesale prices increased at an annual rate of 7.7 per cent. A good portion of increa prices are pas consumer, es food and fuel

Volunteer group will work with parolees

By PAT GROJEAN

Crime continues to be in the news as people search for new ways to combat and lessen the wave. A recently formed Talk Force on Volunteerism in Sikeston may be working on projects that could lower the local rate.

The force, made up mainly of Sikeston residents, is aiming its efforts at helping those on probation or parole and those recently released from prison who are under no supervision.

Plans have been worked out and volunteers are now being sought to work on an individual basis with p ersons previously convicted of relatively minor offenses.

About 150 people are on probation or parole in Scott County alone, and approximately 90 of whom live in Sikeston, according to Tom Skinner of Dexter, probation officer for Scott County. With that many people to serve, it is very difficult for a probation officer to develop as much involvement with each client as may be necessary.

Studies have shown that people who received individual help or who have someone they can turn to while on probation or parole most often tend to have no further criminal charges. In this way such a community volunteer program could possibly reduce the local crime rate.

Volunteers would be trained by state Board of Probation and Parole or by the Community Service Center of Cape Girardeau. The CSC works only with people who have been released from prison and are under no supervision of the law.

Volunteers would work with people between the ages of 17 and 25 who committed relatively minor offenses and who are residents of this area. One client would be assigned per volunteer, Skinner said.

Although there are no real qualifications for volunteers, they must be people who will work directly with a client at least one hour per week. Volunteers could help with locating jobs or housing, providing transportation, tutoring, providing some other skill which would help a client or just by being a friend – someone to talk to.

5 injured in traffic accidents

Five persons received minor injuries in three area traffic accidents Wednesday and early today, the highway patrol announced today.

Two men were injured in a single-vehicle accident on Highway 160 two miles west of Doniphan at 12:15 a.m. today.

The accident occurred when a car driven by Ralph Bridges, 46, of Doniphan failed to stop at a stop sign, ran through a T-intersection and struck a rock embankment.

Bridges and a passenger, Donnie Collins, 23, of Alton, received minor injuries but refused treatment.

Donnie King, 26, of Baldwyn, Miss., suffered minor abdominal injuries at 10:30 p.m. Wednesday on Interstate 55 near New Madrid when a cross-tie fell off another truck traveling northand hit a tire on Bridges' truck, causing his abdomen to strike the steering wheel.

Bridges was taken to Missouri Delta Community Hospital in Sikeston.

Donnie Ray Briney, 34, of Corning, Ark., and Dale Riley, 39, of Poplar Bluff were injured in a two-vehicle accident at 6:35 p.m. Wednesday on Highway 67 at the Missouri-Arkansas state line.

The collision occurrred, according to the patrol, when a southbound jeep driven by Briney crossed the centerline and Riley, driving north, swerved his car to miss Brieny at the same time Briney swerved in the same direction.

The men were not hospitalized.

Police find stolen trailer

EAST PRAIRIE — A four-wheel farm trailer, which had been stolen Tuesday night from T. F. and C. R. Hunter Farm at New Madrid, was found at 4 a.m. Wednesday by police near the intersection of North Lincoln and Highway 105.

According to police, the trailer had come loose from a vehicle that had been pulling it and the trailer had hit a utility pole.

Economic news is go

ST. LOUIS (AP) — "The economic news is all good" and will continue to be so if the United States acts prudently, says Secretary of the Treasury William E. Simon.

Simon indicated Wednesday that financial indicators, particularly the gross national product, demonstrate the economy is continuing a slow but stable recovery.

The GNP could increase to as much as 8 per cent in the third quarter when official figures are released later this month, he told a group of business and civic leaders.

Additionally, he said, the rate of inflation is down almost 50 per cent from its double-digit peak at the end of last year.

People are not aware of the economic upswing because of "a lag between the public's perceptions and the facts as they are happening now," the secretary said.

Saying that a president "can do just so much," Simon criticized Congress for adopting legislative programs that he said could lead to a budget deficit as high as $75 billion this year.

In order to slow inflation, he said, Congress should not pass any new spending programs and should cut present programs by a fixed percentage.

Other steps necessary to speed a complete economic recovery, according to Simon, include implementation of an energy program, cutting back on money for regulatory agencies and revamping the welfare system.

Simon defended the idea of welfare cuts, saying they did not indicate a lack of government compassion for the poor.

Mimists to perform for students and public

Bert Houle and Sophie Wibaux, popular mime actors, will present performances in Sikeston Oct. 13-17 as part of a 20-week national tour supported in part by the National Endowment for the Arts dance touring program and produced by the Loretto-Hilton Theatre in St. Louis.

The actors will perform for students at Sikeston elementary schools and Sikeston Junior High School during the week and will present a public performance at 7:30 p.m. Oct. 16 at Sikeston activity center.

The program is being presented locally by the Sikeston Arts and Education Council and Missouri State Council on the Arts. Tickets for the public performance may be purchased at Bank of Sikeston.

Mime is an increasingly popular art form. It is a theater language using expressive movement instead of dialogue. The performers, agile as dancers, wear white face paint and contrasting make-up so that their features clearly express emotion.

Innovative music and lighting are the main external elements added to create atmosphere. The numerous dramatic pieces making up the program cover a wide variety of subjects, some treated seriously and others satirically.

Gin burglarized

NEW MADRID — Bootheel Gin, 300 Virginia St., was burglarized sometime Wednesday night and items valued between $1,200 and $1,400 were reported stolen, according to City Marshal Virgil "Flip" Dees, who also reported two weekend burglaries.

Items taken included tools valued at $600, a calculator, check writing machine and an adding machine.

Dees said a front door glass had been broken.

Dees also reported today that three barbecued pork shoulders were stolen sometime Saturday night from Halford's Chat 'n Chew Restaurant on Highway 61 North. The meat had been left to smoke in a locked pit, Dees said.

The Rev. Edward L. Watkins reported to police that a color television set had been stolen from the United Methodist Church parsonage, 623 Mill St., sometime Saturday night. The method of entering the house was not recorded, according to Dees.

Basham wins state award

Matt Basham, chief operator of the Sikeston Waste Water Treatment Plant, has been awarded the Warren A. Kramer Award.

The award is given each year by the Missouri Water and Sewerage Conference to a person in the water and waste water field in recognition of his responsible interest and participation in continuing education for self- improvement in the practice of the operational and technical skill in the field of water and waste water treatment.

The award also recognized Basham for trustworthy performance of duty and integrity and loyalty to his work which characterized the life of Warren A. Kramer. Kramer was founder and a director of the Water and Waste Water School at Neosho.

This is the second time an employe of the water and waste water treatment department of the Sikeston Board of Municipal Utilities has received the award and the first time in Missouri that two recipients from the same city have received it. The award was previously won by Dick Lucy, superintendent of the water and sewage treatment plant.

The price of a first-class postage stamp, now a dime, could soar to 16 cents over the next two years as a result of the recently negotiated contract between the United States Postal Service and its 600,000 workers.

Though both sides are downplaying the price tag, reported the Washington Post, the contract between the United States Postal Service and its 600,000 workers for the next three years could cost the stamp-buying public $1.8 billion a year by 1978.

The wage-fringe package approved in late July calls for 10 postal pay raises over the next three years. Four of the increases would be "up front" increases worth $1,500 each to employes over the life of the contract.

"The big money," said the Post,' "is certain to be the six open-end raises that the USPS has promised each of its employes, based on the rate of inflation. Those boosts easily could drive the wage-fringe package well over the $1 billion that has been used by some officials and union leaders in discussions of cost...

"The new agreement ... guarantees even larger pay raises over the next three years and six, rather than four, additional increases directly tied to the cost of living ...

"Even before they agreed to the wage-fringe benefit package, postal officials said they would have to raise first-class rates to 13 cents this year. With mail volume dropping, and the Postal Service projecting a $591-million loss this year even with higher rates, the price of stamps has nowhere to go but up."

RESHUFFLING INCOME BECOMES POLITICAL ISSUE

Despite what some members of Congress and the Administration may think, there is increasing resistance among the working people as taxpayers against the increasing role of the Government in its drive to narrow income differences among Americans.

The Government refers to its action as "transfer payments," a technical sounding term, simply meaning the transfer of income from one group of individuals to another via the tax system.

Such transfer payments--in the form of welfare, Social Security, unemployment compensation, veterans' benefits, Medicare and Medicaid, to name the major types--will surpass 150 billion dollars this year, an amount five times as large as a decade ago and growing rapidly with congressional sanction and support.

Now add similar payments made by state and local governments, and the total runs to 177 billions, according to U.S. News & World Report's survey.

Taxpaying workers are realizing that these "transfer payments" today comprise $1 out of every $7 of personal income in the U.S.--an increase from $1 in $20 some years ago. These payouts provide more income for Americans on the whole than interest, dividends, rents or profits--and are exceeded as an income producer only by wages and salaries.

The survey confirms that "transfer payments" furnish more than half of the available income of Americans below the so-called poverty line--and is spent on millions more families above that line.

Further proof that Government is squarely in the business of reshuffling incomes is that, at the federal level, "transfer payments" account for 42 per cent of Government spending, up from 26 per cent in 1965.

Most of us can't comprehend the vast numbers of people who are now on the collecting end. More than 30 million receive Social Security payments, about 18 million get food stamps, 15 million are on welfare. It is estimated 14 million people will collect unemployment benefits, and millions more will get veterans' pensions, school lunch aid, health and medical-insurance benefits.

The survey reports that many people receive more than one form of "transfer payment." Eliminate the overlap, and an estimated 1 in every 4 Americans in 1975 will collect one form or another of income equalizer.

So if these facts are enough to make you angry, there are new programs in Congress to aid people more and spend more in the old programs.

So we say it is time the working-taxpayers get into politics for the 1976 elections or you ain't seen nothing yet as Government redistributes your income to more non-workers and drones on the public teat.

CONGRESSIONAL FURY ON GRAIN

The 1976 elections are more than a year away, but two Republican members of Congress from Kansas are busily engaged these days in putting daylight between themselves and the Gerald Ford presidency on the important issue to their constitutents of selling grain to the Soviet Union. Sen. Bob Dole pointedly declined to join President Ford recently in Overland Park; he now has written a critical open letter to the President. Rep. Keith Sebelius, representing a Kansas wheat district, has charged the administration with a "breach of faith" with farmers in the current ban on grain sales to Russia.

Senator Dole particularly is upset that the Department of Agriculture is being left out in the cold in current negotiations with the U.S.S.R. Those talks are designed to lead to a grain purchasing agreement between the two nations covering several years. Early groundwork for such an agreement has been conducted by the Departments of State and Labor, with nary a public word from Agriculture.

Dole also took pains to point out in his open letter that President Ford on May 1 stated flatly that "our farm products must have unfettered access to world markets." Sebelius also questioned the Ford policy of "allowing George Meany, John Dunlop and others to dictate American farm policy at the expense of farmers."

"It is a paradox of enormous irony," Sebelius told his constituents. "The administration refused government support for a target price that could help keep farmers from going out of business if prices fell. Instead, they asked farmers to produce and promised a free-market agriculture. Yet, when the farmer's price inched over the cost of production, the promise was broken, the free-market concept shelved and, at the bidding of organized labor, government controls were placed on farm exports."

A lot of persons recently have been asking similar questions. Who in the United States is making policy on foreign agricultural trade? And what is the price going to be to those in production crop farming? Dole and Sebelius are acting like they know—and don't like it.

CANDY FUND CONTRIBUTIONS

Some newspaper editorials lately on lobbyists and the Missouri lobby law are enough to turn your stomach.

Everyone seems to be using the figure that "only 19 per cent of the lobbyists at the last session filed reports to comply with the law." By whose opinion were only 19 per cent of the reports correct? Did the Cole County prosecutor say this? Was this determined in court? The answer we got in checking was that "this was the consensus of the Jefferson City press corp". Now isn't it a little far out for the press to begin making rulings like this.

I admit, I'm a little sensitive on the subject, I'm registered as a lobbyist although I've never been certain I had to register. Registering is some process. You go in the chief clerk's office or the secretary of the senate's office and ask to register. They give you a mimeographed piece of paper to fill out which says you are paid to lobby. (I resent this because I'm not paid to lobby per se.) Anyway, you fill out this mimeographed form and ask if you owe them anything. They say, "No, but you can make a contribution to the candy fund.",' Well, you can be sure I make a contribution to the candy fund. Who wants to run the risk of having his form thrown out? You don't get a card or receipt to show you have registered.

At the end of the session when you file the report they do not keep a register or log. On the senate side they have two stacks of papers. One, the registrations and the other, the reports. Eventually, they are supposed to be stapled together. Anyone who comes in to look at the registrations and reports could sneak one out and no one would know. (Good way to take care of your opponents.) At least on the House side they date when the report comes in. They don't bother to do this on the Senate side.

There is nothing wrong with registering and reporting. Who the lobbyists are and who they represent should be a matter of record. The process should not be tedious and it deserves better handling than it is getting in Missouri. No lobbyist is going to slip a legislator a big chunk of money to get passage of a bill. He'll have someone else do that for him. The lobbyists will not report it and certainly the legislator won't.

Lobbyists serve an important function. Government is a lot better off with them than without them. For one thing you know which side they are on. You know why they oppose a bill and why they are for a bill. From the opposing lobbyist the legislator can get the other side and then make up his mind. Much research comes about by lobbying.

Frankly, we can't see much difference between and lobbyist and a crusading editorial writer. They're both after something and generally both believe in the cause.

Instead of berating lobbyists, the newspapers would be performing a greater service in seeking a reasonable law and calling for a little more serious handling of registrations and reports by the clerks and secretaries of the two houses.

By the way, the contribution to the candy fund is still the fee for filing under the new law.

LIKE IT IS

The director of the U.S. State Department's Office of Fuels and Energy spoke with a ring of common sense when he observed, "We must admit that there is no oil conspiracy; that there are no vast quantities of oil or gas hidden away by the oil companies to be developed tomorrow. We must admit that the energy crisis is real and potentially dangerous..., and we must refuse to listen to those who say that any solution is easy."

A small leaflet issued with customer billing by a major oil company summarizes some of the principal reasons for growing scarcity of petroleum products. In the case of gasoline, the leaflet points out that in the first six months of 1973 there was a 5 percent increase in supply over last year--ample to meet the extra demand in almost any other year in history. But the past year has been unlike any other year in history. There are millions more cars on the road than ever before--including 12 million 1973 models, which average 20 per cent fewer miles per gallon of gasoline than 1967 models--thanks to pollution control requirements set by the government. In addition, today's autos use more gasoline because they are heavier, and more people are buying power-operated options like air conditioning.

Government action required to held end petroleum shortages includes an immediate decision to build the trans-Alaska pipeline, and end to delay in offshore development of oil resources, a reappraisal of auto emission standards, elimination of barriers to building new refineries and deepwater ports and, finally, expanded research and development. The sooner the conspiracy myth is exploded, the sooner the public will give its full support of these fundamental prerequisites of meeting present and future energy requirements.

WASHINGTON--I have a book publisher friend of mine in New York named Binding who was very upset that Viking had hired Jackie Kennedy Onassis as an editor.

"If I had known she was available for $200 a week," he said, "I would have hired her. I thought she would ask for $250."

"Even if Jackie asked for $250," I said, "it still would have been a bargain."

"I'm not so sure," said Binding. "Suppose she decides to decorate her own office. You can't give Jackie Onassis a steel desk and a swivel chair. You'd have to find a Louis V desk that came out of Versailles and a chair to match. Then you would have to have a sofa from Marie Antoinette's bedroom and at least one Pissarro and one Cezanne for the walls."

"Don't forget the drapes and carpeting," I said.

"I'm afraid the Viking office manager is going to have to go to Parke-Bernet auction sales for the next six months," Binding told me.

"It's still worth it," I said. "Jackie has to be an asset to the firm. Everyone will send her their new manuscripts."

"Why?"

"Do you realize what a rejection slip from Jackie Onassis would be worth to Charles Hamilton Autographs Unlimited?"

"I never thought of that," Binding said, "but still Viking is going to have problems. Jackie really doesn't think like a publisher. I can see an agent calling up and demanding $10,000 for a first book and Jacking saying "we'll give you $50,000."

"It could happen," I agreed.

"She also doesn't know how writers operate. You have to be on their backs all the time and many authors won't even take any calls from their editors because they don't have any pages to send them. I think it's going to be a terrible blow to Jackie when she telephones her writer and he tells his wife to tell Jackie he isn't there. She's not used to people refusing her calls."

"It will be tough at first," I admitted, "but she's going to have to take rejection like everybody else in the business."

"Then," said Binding, "let's not forget the lunches. Most editors do their business over lunch and they're expected to pick up the tab. Jackie is not going to take writers to Schrafts."

"I'd love to be Jackie's writer," I said, "just so I could go to "21" for lunch every day. What kind of books do you think Viking will ask Jackie to find for them?"

"I heard her first project was going to be a travel book called 'Europe on $15,000 a Day.' " Binding said.

"It could sell," I said.

"I think another thing Jackie is going to have to face up to is that writers are very sensitive, unhappy people and they take out most of their frustrations on their editors. If the publisher doesn't advertise a book the writers scream like mad."

"You mean people are going to scream at Jackie?"

"You better believe it. I've never known a writer who didn't scream at his or her editor."

"But nobody screams at Jackie!" I said.

"They will now. And don't forget about writer's block. Every writer gets a block sooner or later and then his editor has to go see him, and unblock him."

"I wonder if Jackie knows how to unblock a writer."

"She's going to have to learn," Binding said.

"You know Binding, I think you're just jealous because Jackie didn't go with your firm."

"I suppose you're right. I think what I'll do is let her break in at Viking, and then when she gets the hang of it, I'll offer her $300 a week. It's a lot of money, but in the book business everything's a gamble."

JACK ANDERSON SAYS: An innocent hunting weekend?

with Les Whitten

WASHINGTON — Each hunting season, the Northrup Corporation invites congressional and military bigwigs to is private preserve on Maryland's scenic eastern shore for some goose shooting.

The distinguished guests usually bag at least a goose apiece. But it's Northrup that winds up with the golden goose.

Last year, for example, the company wangled a whopping $444.8 million worth of defense contracts from the Pentagon. Many of the goose hunters played a role in awarding he contracts.

Not that they would sell out the taxpayers for a goose chase. No one in the Pentagon would likely award a contract in exchange for the rustic bed, board and blinds which Northrup provides the hunters.

But the hosts know it is more effective to slap backs than to twist arms. A little booze and banter will go farther than a discourse on the company's merits.

Thus are public officials lulled until they slowly lose their sense of mission and feel a stronger loyalty to their corporate cronies.

We learned about these complimentary weekends-in-the-woods from secret Northrup memos, which specify even how many geese each participant killed.

The setting is incomparable. The goose hunting unsurpassed. Northrup also serves the hunters hearty bacon-and-egg breakfasts and pass-the-plate suppers, with plenty of liquor to take the chill off.

Between nips , the men swap stories and, according to witnesses, discuss military needs. Rep. Robert Leggett, D-Calif., for one, recalled hearing a lot of talk about defense programs.

Northrup's guest list includes more than 30 admirals and generals, among them Adm. Isaac Kidd, ex-Navy Material chief; Adm. John P. "Blackie" Weinel, former planning director for the Joint Chiefs' Gen. Clyde Box, former Deputy Air Force inspector Gen. Duwart "Pete" Crow, former Air Force Comptroller; Gen. Horace Wasde, former Vice Chief of the JCS; and Adm. Thomas McClellan, former chief of Naval Air Systems.

The guests from Capitol Hill include Sen. Howard Cannon, D-Nev.; Rep. Bill Nichols, D-Ala.; Rep. Robert L. F. Sikes, D-Fla.; ex-Rep. William Minshall, R-Ohio; Gordon Nease, then with the Senate Armed Services Committee; Earl Morgan, formerly with the House Armed Services Committee; Arthur Kuhl, Senate Foreign Relations Committee; Tom Scott, Senate Appropriations Committee; Chet Sobsey, assistant to Senator Cannon; and Len Kilgore, former Assistant to Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz.

We placed calls to all the guests whom we had been able to place at Northrup's hunting retreat. Those who returned the calls generally portrayed themselves as overworked public servants getting away from it all for a weekend. Northrup refused to comment; the Defense Department also had no comment.

Footnote: Occasionally, an important guest, unable to slip away for a weekend, got a goose anyway. Northrup delivered a goose to Senator Cannon, for example, after he missed a hunting party.

BREAST CANCER: A startling study warns that X-ray screening, which is supposed to detect breast cancer in the early stages, may actually cause cancer.

This radiation detection method, known as mammography, has been widely publicized as a life saver.But in an unpublished study, Dr. John Bailar of the prestigious National Cancer Institute writes:

"There seems to be a possibility that the routine use of mammography in screening asymptomatic women may eventually take almost as many lives as it saves."

The X-ray screening is part of a joint program which the National Cancer Intitute and American Cancer Society set up three years ago in 27 centers across the country. More than 200,000 women, all over the age of 35, are participating in the five-year project.

Preliminary figures show this early detection program has located breast cancer in 3.4 per 1,000 woomen. But Dr. Bailar's study adjusts these figures, claiming no more than 1.0 and as few as .5 detections can be attributed directly to the X-ray screening.

He contends these results may not be worth the risk involved with radiation. He suggests instead that "screening by medical history and physical examination alone will probably provide much or most of the same benefit without risk from irradiation."

But Dr. Frank Rauscher, director of the Institute, insisted there is "no question" about the effectiveness of the mammography program. He gave Dr. Bailar credit for "drawing more attentiion to the hazards involved." But both doctors stressed that only the most minimal doses of X-ray are used in the screening.

Other sources charged that prodding by the American Cancer Society and College of Radiology (whose members may profit from the X-ray fees) had moved the mammography project ahead prematurely.

Dr. Bailar's study cited a report by a committee of the Canadian Association of Radiologists. "It is not justifiable," states the report, "to recommend screening for breast cancer in Canada except in high risk groups."

Footnote: Otha Linton, a spokesman for the College of Radiology, confirmed that the college was a major backer of the program. However, he denied the profit motive and added: "Radiologists are sufficiently busy and can make a lot more money doing other kinds of exams."

Inside Labor

Political smoke screen: Labor's national convention to pick Democratic party's '76 presidential nominee

SAN FRANCISCO — Labor's chief of chiefs, George Meany, doesn't always blow his smoke signals from his famous cigars. Meany-ologists have learned to watch him just huff and puff. Especially when he goes political.

He has, for example, turned movie producer so he could premiere his film at the national AFL-CIO convention here. He and his staff have produced a 28-minute film dubbed "The Voice of Freedom."

After an introduction by Meany, the picture features Soviet exile Nobel Laureate Alexander Solzhenitsyn and the roaring, applauding audience which first greeted him in Washington some months ago.

This is a Meany touch blending the skill of Machiavelli, Metternich, and Golda Meir. The film will be shown everywhere -- and everywhere it will be an assault on President Ford's detente foreign policy in general and Secretary of State Kissinger's in particular, with a propaganda load dumped on the ailing Secretary Brezhnev, too. Thus the movie will be Meany's national surrogate throughout the coming presidential campaign. Effective, too.

On domestic issues, Meany and virtually all his colleagues will need no surrogates. They'll be out on the campaign hustings reflecting Meany's words -- "Ford is a nice guy, a likeable guy, a very, very straight truthful guy. There's nothing tricky about him. And, on a personal basis, it's pretty hard to come to dislike him."

But the key words are the first words in that comment. As a "nice guy" Jerry Ford should finish last next year. That's about as subtle as a Playboy centerfold.

But if not Ford, who? Where are the signals? It's later than most think. This is the very minute for planning slates for the 33 presidential preference primaries. So what are the thousands of delegates and alternates thinking? They are the most representative cross-section of America's 20 million unionists and their families. Quite a bloc of voters.

Well, the signal can be seen in AFL-CIO Industrial Union Department resolutions spread around here. One such was passed at the IUD's recent pre-convention convention. It says: "The 1976 elections will determine whether the nation will be governed by a President who cares about the workers..or by one who will continue to turn his back on worker concerns."

These are the words of I.W. (Abe) Abel, United Steelworkers of America president, who was Meany's belabored spokesman at the whistling, howling, hooting 1972 McGovern nominating convention in Miami.

But you can't beat a racing Ford with no horse -- to mangle a phrase. What are Meany's signals for an acceptable Democratic candidate? Some insiders say just look at the speakers' schedule at this eleventh AFL-CIO constitutional convention. It's not just the fact that four Democratic Senators have been invited – and the Shapps, Shrivers and Muskies ignored.

Note the order:

On Monday morning Oct. 6 the sessions will hear Scoop Jackson and Hubert Humphrey. In the afternoon – Birch Bayh and Lloyd Bentsen. Could be a coincidence. But coincidences are about as frequent in Meany's strategy as congratulatory telegrams to Dick Nixon.

So political insiders say pick one from column A and one from column B. It will be either Scoop or Hubie for president and the other two can fight it out for second place. There had been some talk of New York's Gov. Carey. But for some reason he has turned off a lot of powerful labor leaders.

There's another signal, this time not from Meany but from the rarely wrong political prophet, the hatters union's Alex Rose. His New York balance-of-power Liberal party rarely has held a pre-election banquet without the next President on its dais as guest speakers.

Back in 1963 Rose featured Lyndon Johnson. Bobby Kennedy promptly ordered Larry O'Brien and Kennie O'Donnell to bar Rose from the White House. So Bobby told me when he got mad at the hatter and referred to him as "that son of a bitch."

Well, in New York City this Oct. 9 Rose's banquet features Scoop Jackson. And Democratic National Committee chairman Robert Strauss will be sitting up there right beside him.

Among the national labor leaders I've polled there appears no doubt that the final struggle will be between Scoop and Hubert. As for the vice-presidential nomination, the struggle will be between the forces who want to appeal to the New Politics McGovern-Kennedy group through Birch Bayh, and those who say -- offset Gov. Wallace's huge bloc with a more conservative candidate than Bayh, meaning Bentsen.

So the 20th anniversary AFL-CIO convention will be geared to launch a purge-Ford drive.At the same time, Meany is streamlining the AFL-CIO's high command for the fight by retiring five old emeriti from the executive council. There will be new young blood to pour into the '76 campaign along with the middle-aged sophisticates who have proven they can make or break Presidents and even governors and mayors.

CIRCUIT COURT

BENTON — A $10,000 Personal Injury and damage suit was filed Wednesday in Scott County Circuit Court by Chris Hoffman against Madene Coplen Shield.

The suit stems from a May 6, 1973, automobile accident and states that a vehicle operated by Hoffman had stopped waiting to make a left turn from East Malone Avenue into the Midtowner Village Shopping Center in Sikeston when a car operated by the Shields woman was driven carelessly into the back of his vehicle.

As a result of the accident, Hoffman states that he has sustained permanent and disabling injuries to his head, neck, shoulders, back and nerves.

The suit states that, as a result of the injuries, Hoffman's earning capacity has been permanently damaged and that he has had and will continue to require medical attention and medicine for his injuries at great expense.

Nursing Home Patients Studied

SOUTHPORT, Conn. (AP) — The federal Medicaid program tends to extend patients' stays in skilled nursing homes and may keep them there longer than necessary, a study shows.

Edith S. Baum says the program provides more aid for nursing home care than for less intensive intermediate care and home care, such as visiting nurses.

As a result, Medicaid patients are less able to afford more suitable care than non-Medicaid patients, her study shows.

The 150-page study was Mrs. Baum's thesis for her master's degree in public health at the Yale University School of Medicine.

"The extended length of stay of the Medicaid patient is not only more costly in terms of federal and state reimbursement but is also psychologically debilitating to patients," her study says.

Mrs. Baum collected data on 16 long-term care facilities in the Greater Bridgeport area. The study was based on 440 patients discharged in 1973. It compared Medicaid and non-Medicaid patients and showed that the average Medicaid patient stayed five times as long in nursing homes, although they were no more seriously ill on admission than non-Medicaid patients.

She recommends that alternatives to institutionalization such as home care, day care, day hospitals and meals on wheels be set up and that more reimbursement for intermediate and home care be made.

"Good grief!" Charlie Brown is getting old

SANTA ROSA, Calif. (AP) — Charlie Brown's short pants, polo shirt and painfully shy demeanor belie the fact that one of America's most beloved comic strip characters is 25 years old today.

"Good grief!" might be the perennial loser's only comment. His creator, Charles M. Schulz, admits, "The poor kid has been subjected to a lot."

Good ole Charlie Brown and his pint-sized pals — including his philsophical dog, Snoopy — first appeared in a comic strip drawn Oct. 2, 1950, by Schulz. The cartoonist, now a 52-year-old multimillionaire, still huddles over his drawing board daily to chart the adventures of the "Peanuts" gang.

"I think the strip has changed considerably," Sculz said in an interview. "The big turning point was when Snoopy began to think and he started to live on top of the doghouse. The first time he got up on the doghouse, he fell off and said, 'Life is a rude awakening.' It just seemed funny to keep him on top of the doghouse."

Snoopy's wry observations and such sayings by Peanuts' characters as "Happiness is a warm puppy," "Curse you, Red Baron" and "How can we lose when we're so sincere?" have been emblazoned on shirts, greeting cards, toys and other lucrative spinoffs.

As Schulz' style loosened up, he added to the strip such characters as a talking school building, a tiny bird named Woodstock, and Spike, Snoopy's moustachioed brother who lived with the coyotes.

"I have a common sense approach that keeps the strip within the realm of plausibility. It's never overly intellectual or sophisticated," Schulz said.

He said he purposely lets his characters call each other names such as "blockhead" and "fuss budget."

"I think they demonstrate that life is quite a struggle out there on the playground. Adults have a tendency to forget how risky it is out there," said Schulz, who has five children from his first marriage.

Schulz was an instructor at the Art Instruction School in his hometown of Minneapolis when he tarted the United Features Syndicate comic strip. It now appears in 1,655 papers. He still draws the strip with a fountain pen he obtained during his days as an art student.

He earned $90 during the first month following syndication of "Peanuts." By 1966 the strip brought him a yearly income estimated at $300,000. Gross income from such Peanuts spinoffs as toys, wearing apparel, books and televison shows was $150 million in 1971. His office refused to release current income figures.

Ann Landers

Boss frolics while secretary stews

Dear Ann Landers: What can a secretary do about a boss in his 50s who is making a jackass out of himself? He is chasing around with some young idiot who works in this office and everyone is laughing at him behind his back.

These two fools have picnic lunches in parks which are public, yet they think nobody sees them. They ride around together during office hours (he also drives her home) and they act like the whole world is blind, deaf and dumb.

Last Thursday he told me he was taking off from noon till 4:00 p.m. to call on an account in a neighboring state. The idiot went with him. When his wife phoned ten minutes later, I felt like a traitor because I didn't tell her the truth.

Should I face up to my Christian duty and tell him to shape up? Or should I keep my mouth shut? -- Secretary To A Nut

Dear Sec: Who anointed you, anyway? Since when is it your Christian duty to tell anyone to shape up? MYOB, Lady. If your boss persists in behaving like a jackass, he'll pay the price. There's no such thing in this life as a free lunch.

Dear Ann Landers: My problem is sort of selfish. Please don't think I'm a rotten kid but I need someone to help me think this through.

Two months ago Dad died of cancer. He and Mom had a great marriage. There are two kids in our family besides me (I'm 15). The youngest is a boy, nine. Mom is 38 but she looks very good for her age.

Last night my kid brother asked Mom if she would ever marry again. At first she seemed sad, then said, "You might think this sounds strange but I would like to marry again because I had such a good life with your father. I'd hate to live the rest of my days alone. It would be sort of a put-down to him."

My brother started to cry and said, "Gee, Mom, how could you ever let another man take Dad's place?"

I'm ashamed to admit I felt the same way. If we are wrong will you say something to straighten us out? Thanks, Ann. -- We Miss Him Awfully

Dear Miss Him: Two months isn't very long. The wounds are still fresh. But they will heal. And as time goes on you children will want your mother to have a full life. For a woman who has had a happy marriage, it usually means another marriage.

No one will ever be able to take you dad's place, but surely you would be pleased if a kind, considerate man came along and could fill the lonely void in your mother's life. Save this column and read it again one year from now.

Dear Ann Landers: Please tell those cheapies who squeeze a nickel so hard the buffalo gets a headache there's a new day a-dawnin'. The U.S. postal authorities have finally put an end to their sweet little racket. No more dropping letters unstamped into mail boxes and sticking the guy at the other end.

As one who has worked for a gas and light company for several years, I can tell you we were stuck plenty at the end of every month because people knew we'd pay the postage due on their checks if we had to. So they never bothered to put on a stamp.

I hope this news reaches all who haven't as yet caught on and are still playing those cheap little games. -- Last Laugh Lulu

Dear L.L.' I'm right with you, Sister. Our office used to get stuck for two-pound manuscripts, 20-page letters -- just name it and we paid the postage. But no more. Anything that isn't properly stamped ends up in the dead letter office.

How to -- and how much? Find out with Ann Landers's new booklet, "How, What, and When to Tell Your Child About Sex." For your copy, send 50 cents in coin along with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Ann Landers, P.O. Bo 1400, Elgin, Illinois, 60120.

Fall's small touches

You don't have to spend a fortune to put yourself into this fall's fashion picture. Little touches added here and there can do the trick admirably. Since this fall's big fashion message boils down to two basic silhouettes, one a soft, generously proportioned look, the other a leaner, close-to-the-body look, here's some advice to help you sort out what goes best with each silhouette.

When you're pulling together a "big" look, concentrate on one really super accessory instead of piling on several small ones which have a tendency to be overpowered by bulky clothes. If you love caps, you might try a brow-brushing knit one with oversized ribby or cable trim. Or you might wrap your neck with a big soft scarf. If you're looking for a new shoe shape, slip into a sleek flat-heeled type or one on a low wedge If you're in the market for a new pair of boots, look for a wide, straight-legged type in soft, crushy leather. A good addition at the waist is a wide cinch belt.

On days when you are into the new lean silhouette, think of adding sleek, simple things and do not be afraid to add a couple of chains, a scarf and a chain, a cap and a scarf. You can be a bit more generous here than when you are working with a "big" look. Just remember to pick things that are in the same lean mood as the clothes. If you like a knit cap, pick a head-hugging classic one or try a soft beret. Pick skinny-chained neck pendants, sleek little pouch bags worn two by two, or a handsome envelope shoulder bag. Even your watch will look terrific if it has slender, neat lines. Shoes follow suit ... in refined, lower-heeled shapes, such as T-straps and classic-styled pumps.

Whether your look is big or lean, casual or dressy, accessories are all part of the total fashion picture for versatile fall dressing.

JEWELRY

Pick handsome pieces and wear them sparingly. Shine is important. Eastern and Oriental influences are coming on strong. Look for amulets dangling from a skinny chain. Bangles, in natural looks like wood or bone, interspersed with the shine of metal. Wider, heavier cuff-bracelets worn one to a wrist -- many carved or handpainted. There's a renewed interest in chokers and sleek strands of beads.

GLOVES

The newest are soft knit finger-warmers that go all the way up to the elbow. They can be worn crushed down at the wrist or turned down into cuffs. Gloves are found in a wide range of textures -- thick, bulky knits, smooth knits, knits with fuzzy surface interest, smooth leathers or suedes with warm linings, leather-and-knit combinations. In solids touched with rabbit's hair, in stripes, in delightful folkloric patterns, many which are Mexican or Peruvian-inspired.

BELTS

Look for wide ones made to cinch or wrap and tie. Narrow, neat ones to sliver through belt loops. They are in sleek rigid leather, soft crushy leather, or elastic-and-leather combinations. Try leather and hemp for early fall days. Leather -- braided, basket-woven or combined with suede for late ron. Buckles take on new importance this season. Many are shiny and as well-designed as pieces of jewelry.

BAGS

There will be a continuation of oversized totes, particularly horizontals and chunky clutches in smooth and sueded leathers. You'll find skinny envelope shoulder bags and little double pouch bags worn over the shoulder to carry change. Look for the big soft pouch in leather; in canvas, with our without leather trim; in quilted or plaided fabric. The classic safari– in canvas and leather, and sueded leather. Those with a longer shoulder strap can be crossed over the body, schoolbag-style.

BOOTS AND SHOES

The important fall look for skirts and dresses is the soft, straight-legged classic crush boot. The "Fyre" type boot continues to be a favorite to team with rolled up jeans and heavier knitted outerwear. There's also a wealth of crepe-bottomed boots for pant and jeans -- as well as ski boots, hiking boots and two-toned sports boots.

Lower-heeled shoes and little flats make a fashion comeback. Wedges continue their popularity for casual occasions -- in slip-ons, moccasin variations, and styles with ties and strap-fastenings. Also in ghillies on dress-wedges. T-straps, one-straps, sling-backs and moccasins on stacked heels are everywhere.

SCARVES, MUFFLERS AND SHAWLS

Scarves are fall's big fashion accessory ... in a variety of sizes, wraps and ties. In everything from challis to silky fabrics. Mufflers are terrific, too -- to sling around the neckline and knot, tie, or let fall free and fringed. Wear heavy knit scarves or mufflers in multiples for an interesting play on textures. There is more big news in shawls. Knitted or woven, fringed or not. Wear them folded, as a triangle. Top them over a dress, a jacket, a sweater, even a coat!

CAPS AND HATS

The knit story is still going strong with lots of little head-hugging caps in lots of weights and textures from thick and rustic to downy-soft and touched with angora or mohair. Look for the ribbed or plain-stitched, cuffed or uncuffed. As for hats, they couldn't be more varied. There is the basic tennis shape in tweed, the soft felt beret, the newsboy cap in menswear fabric and the slouch hat ... in all the great fall shades of felt.

Washington report

Fiscal responsibility among top priorities

By SEN. STUART SYMINGTON

WASHINGTON, D.C.–Today, our growing federal deficit poses a grave threat to our nation's economic security.

If we are to reduce this massive deficit and restore order to the national economy, it is essential that all areas of government exercise budgetary restraint when determining the relative priorities of the programs American tax dollars support.

In an effort to hold the line on government spending, the House-Senate Conference Committee on Military Procurement Authorization reduced the Administration's budget request for fiscal year 1976 by approximately $3 billion—a 10.7 per cent reduction.

Recently, I served as chairman of a House-Senate conference committee responsible for authorizing funds for military construction projects. By eliminating several questionable projects, such as a new $70 million Defense Intelligence Agency headquarters building, the conference reduced the Defense Department's overall military construction request for fiscal 1976 and the three-month transition period by 8.3 per cent, approving a bill totaling $3.8 billion--an amount which will adequately provide for the construction needs of our military services.

The authorization bill contained $4.9 million for Ft. Leonard Wood, Mo., where the Army is planning to consolidate all of its engineering programs.

However, our military's budget is but one area that cries for fiscal restraint. By eliminating unnecessary expenditures in all areas of government and reducing or holding the line as much as possible on federal spending, we will do much to put the United States on the road to financial integrity.

I recently joined 59 of my Senate colleagues in cosponsoring a Senate resolution giving the Senate Select Committee on Small Business authority to review and report on all legislation involving the Small Business Administration. Similar authority has been given to the Small Business Committee in the House.

At this time, the select committee only has power to conduct investigations and make recommendations to the SBA. Legislative proposals affecting small business are presently handled through tax, banking and labor legislation.

I believe that by consolidating legislative authority under one separate committee, we will be able to deal more effectively with the problems of the small businessman.

Hess still behind bars

BERLIN (AP) — Rudolf Hess, deputy fuehrer to Adolph Hitler during the Nazi era, is 81 years old and still behind bars.

Hess, the only Nazi war criminal in Spandau Prison for the past nine years, celebrated his birthday Tuesday. He was described as healthy by a British spokesman.

The British guarded Hess during September as part of the monthly rotation of American, French, Russian and British troops. The Americans, British and French have asked for Hess' release, but the Russians have refused to agree.

Letters TO THE EDITOR

Bolen's
Rt. 3, Sikeston, Mo.
September 29, 1975
To whom it may concern,

I have enclosed a story my Dad wrote a while back. He's no writer or anything like that. That's why it was so ironic for him to write this. He's a wonderful father and all of this story came straight from the heart. I liked the story so much, I thought you might be able to use it somewhere in your paper. If not, please return it with my thanks for reading it anyway.

Sincerely,
Connie Bolen

I would like to tell you a story about a thought I had the other day. This might seem kinda strange, but anyway; as I was thinking about various things, my mind wandered back to when I was a boy. Back when I lived on a farm down in southeast Missouri.

I remembered when we used to farm with mules. But most of all, I remembered my Daddy when he'd take a young mule and harness him up for the very first time; how he'd look kinda awkward; how full of life he would be. How high he would step, yet very nervous & tense & uncertain he was. I would be kinda worried about what he would do, yet I knew if he had been trained at an early age, there was a good chance he would be okay.

Then came the time when you would hook him up to the wagon. Then when he'd feel the load behind him, he would begin to struggle & sometime kick out of the harness. But my Daddy was a good hand at this business so he would begin to talk kind to him & try to reassure him that everything would be all right. But sometimes it wouldn't work. Then he would have to scold him a little. Sometimes that would fail and he might have to whip him before he would settle down. Then when he had done all he could do, although he was afraid of what might happen, he would give him the reins & let him run until he would be all worn out. Daddy knew there was a chance he might kill himself or be hurt very bad and maybe be scarred up for the rest of his life. Most ofthe time, when it was all over, you could put him back under the load & he'd do pretty good.

Then as I think along this line, I think of how very much the human-being is like the little ole mule.

From the first day of life you feed, care for 'em, protect 'em; & try to teach 'em the things they need to know. Then comes the time when they're out of school & ready to take on other responsibilities. Then like that little ole mule, they begin to feel insecure, nervous & unsettled. You begin to talk and try to persuade. If this fails, you scold or maybe even punish to a greater extent. Then when you feel you have done your best and there is nothing more you can do, you just give them the reins & let 'em run. If you have done your best, you can be pretty sure everything will be okay.

Sometimes they meet with disaster. Sometimes they bear the scars for the rest of their life & sometimes they just run 'til they're all out of wind & give up. Then they're ready to shoulder the load & go forward.

But I remember one ole mule that never could seem to get settled for very long. Although he was old, sometimes he would balk, then, he would go pretty good for a while. Then he would kick out of the harness & run off.

You know, there are some ole folks just like that old mule; they never can seem to bear the load of growing up; the load of stepping out & staring life straight in the face. The load of taking a wife & raising the children, teaching them & setting their feet in the right direction. 'Seems like they just keep kicking out of the harness & running off; leaving no one to carry the load.

Then I have another thought; I think about our country, the U.S.A.; once a great nation filled with a God fearing people with the very laws of our land based on God's own word. But now I see it begin to weaken because we the people, have kicked out of the traces & left the load behind. I see the scars we have encountered down through the years.

We have buried the youth of the land on foreign soil. Our land has been beat & battered by the raging storm & torn apart but the earthquakes that swallow our people like a mighty giant.

Now some folks say we're looking pretty good. But when I look, I see a nation that is internally sick. I see an unsettled people; I see moral decay. I see the youth of our nation kick out of the traces & run. Then I see the scars they have to bear. But worst of all, ole folks like that old mule, that just couldn't stay hitched.

I see a nation filled with murder, crime of every kind, sex-crazy people & drugs that dim our minds. Still, they say we're doing pretty good. But I see a confusion & struggle within the very ranks of government which I believe was set up & based on God's word; to run with peace & harmony. I see the eyes of this entire nation looking on, feeling very nervous & insecure.

Yes, I see many scars on this great nation because we have failed to carry the load so many times. Some day God will give us the reins & let us run; perhaps to the bitter end.

If you don't believe this, maybe you should go out to that farm & take a look at that ole mule. No matter who you are or wherever you may be, take a look around & tell me what you see.

Three Eye . . .

Among the many responses you will undoubtedly receive in regards to the new Sunday edition for our fair city, let me add my sincere congratulations and best wishes. I have long thought Sikeston deserved a Sunday publication, and apparently your thinking coincided with mine in that respect.

Your first issue was far above the norm in all categories, ie. news content, pictures, advertising, and (the area in which I am most concerned) the physical makeup of each page. Am proud to again be a citizen of Sikeston, and also proud to boast a Sunday newspaper in our town.

Again, best wishes on this new venture.

A Bicentennial quiz to take

How's your American history? Here's a test to put you in tune with the Bicentennial. The questions have to do with circumstances and events attending the nation's founding 200 years ago.

Copley News Service

(A) Which two nations in addition to France sided with the Americans against the British in the Revolution?

(B) What was John Adams referring to when, while attending the First Continental Congress in Philadelphia in October, 1774, he wrote to his wife with news of "a peculiar kind of musket?"

(C) Gen. John Burgoyne surrendered at Saratoga on condition that his 6,000 troops were sent back to England, not to fight again. Gen. Horatio Gates agreed, but Congress later refused to honor this part of the agreement. What happened to the troops?

(D) How many patriots signed the Declaration of Independence?

(E) Which of the signers has an unknown grave?

(A) France declared war on Britain in 1778, Spain a year later, and The Netherlands in 1780. France gave crucial aid. The others helped indirectly by drawing off British military power in other parts of the world.

(B) The Kentucky rifle. Rifling had been practiced in Europe as early as 1500, but the new American version produced by immigrant German and Swiss gunsmiths had an accuracy unknown before.

(C) They were marched down to Virginia and held as prisoners until the end of the war.

(D) Fifty-six.

(E) Thomas Lynch Jr. of South Carolina. In poor health as a result of swamp fever contracted in the Army in 1775, he embarked with his wife in 1779 for the West Indies seeking a cure. The vessel in which they sailed was lost at sea.

Mental health has largest state payroll

JEFFERSON CITY — The Missouri Department of Mental Health has the largest payroll of the 14 state government departments, with 11,600 full-time employes and payroll expeditures of $72 million per year.

The department of Social Services runs a close second with 10,300 workers and Highway Department ranks third with 6,696.

By contrast, McDonnell Douglas Corp., one of Missouri's largest private companies, employs 30,000 persons.

The Department of Higher Education has the largest capital investments of any state department because of its campus complexes but only 65 persons are on the central office payroll. Professors and other campus personnel are employed directly by their respective schools.

The mental health department operates 22 major facilities such as state hospitals and mental health centers.

"When you get 10,000 employes in 23 locations including the central office with such a multiplicity of services, it gets big," says Dave Roberts, deputy director of administration. "It's a whole bunch of small things that have to be held together.

The number of counseling services the department offers contributes to its vastness, administrators say.

"Not only do we have the largest department structurally, but the greatest responsibility in the number of survices offered to people," says Dr. Duane Hensley, director for the Division of Mental Retardation — Developmental Disabilities.

Hensley says Missouri statutes give the department wider responsibilities than other service-oriented state agencies, enabling it to offer a wide range of programs.

Besides institutional mental health care, the department offers alcohol and drug counseling, vocational rehabilitation programs and therapy for the developmentally disabled, such as cerebral palsy patients.

The operating budget for the last fiscal year was $98 million. Budget funds appropriated for this fiscal year are $105 million.

"Most of the expenditure is major repairs to the buildings," says Roberts. "You've got general physical plant problems because many of the buildings are so old."

Fulton State Hospital, the first state hospital west of the Mississippi, has buildings which were constructed before the Civil War, Roberts says.

Capital improvement expenses for the department amounted to $8 million in the last fiscal year.

"It's like a large private enterprise with all the bureaucratic paperwork," says Roberts, nodding to a tall stack of forms on his desk. "That's what you get when you get big."

What's the law?

The case of the intimidated spouse

By JACK STRAUSS, LL.B.

Joe was by nature a very gentle, kind and considerate individual. Overworked, however, and confronted by severe financial reverses, his entire disposition suddenly and completely reversed itself to the point that he was closer to the edge than Columbus had ever been with his three ships. And it was his wife Brenda who caught the brunt of it.

Not only did Joe become dictitorial, he became highly critical and jealous of his wife and accused her of having affairs with everyone from the butcher, the baker and the candlestick maker. Finally, unable to take the pressure any longer, Brenda sued Joe to end their marriage.

"My husband's jealousy is driving me batty," she complained in court. "Just the other night, for example, we went to a party and when he heard me mention Michael Angelo, he promptly accused me of having an affair with BOTH of them."

"How was I expected to know who Michael Angelo was," responded Joe. "Lately, I've been having enough trouble trying to remember who I am. Under the circumstances, my wife should not be allowed to walk out on me. It would be like leaving a sinking ship."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you free Brenda from her harried husband?

This is how the judge ruled: NO! The judge held that when a person is suffering from a mental illness, he is not accountable for his actions. Divorces, noted the judge, are granted because of the fault of a person and not from his misfortunes.

Diet important for angina victims

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I read a column by you recently about the man who recovered from angina pectoris. You ignored completely a very important fact, that the man discarded the use of nitroglycerin pills and by using "Questran" he cured his angina pectoris and became a completely rejuvenated 100 per cent new man. Why?

A lot of angina pectoris victims will marvel at this writer's playing tennis, bicycle riding, etc. at age 71 without any more heart attacks.

Why don't all doctors recommend Questran instead of nitroglycerin pills?

DEAR READER — No, I didn't ignore it, I just ran out of space. The man wrote primarily about the role of a low-fat, low-saturated-fat diet and the value of polyunsaturated fat.

Questran is a useful medicine in many patients. It acts by combining with bile salts in the intestine. This increases the elimination of bile salts through the bowel.

Thoughts

From The Living Bible

What is faith? It is the confident assurance that something we want is going to happen. It is the certainty that what we hope for is waiting for us, even though we cannot see it up ahead. Men of God in days of old were famous for their faith. By faith — by believing in God — we know that the world and the stars — in fact, all things — were made at God's command; and that they were all made from things that can't be seen.

Joan Fontaine busy and feeling no guilt

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Oscar winner Joan Fontaine, working in Hollywood for the first time in 15 years, says, "I'm busier than I have ever been in my life.

"I'm doing exactly what I want to do, with no one to be responsible to. The best part of my life alone is that I no longer need to feel guilty.

"Before, I had pangs of guilt because I was devoting time to my career. I always had to consider the feelings of my children or a stray husband — and I use the adjective advisedly.

"People sometimes ask me if I'm lonely. Ridiculous! These are the best years I've known."

Miss Fontaine (Best actress, "Suspicion," 1941) returned to Hollywood for a two-hour movie appropriately titled "The Star." It will be a special show for the CBS series "Cannon," with Miss Fontaine as a film actress who hires William Conrad to find her errant son.

She has had four husbands. The years (57) have left her blonde beauty intact. If anything, her tongue is sharper than ever.

Today in U.S. history

By The Associated Press

Today is Thursday, Oct. 2, the 275th day of 1975. There are 90 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1919, President Woodrow Wilson suffered a stroke, completely paralyzing the left side of his body.

On this date:

In 1780, the British officer who negotiated Benedict Arnold's attempt to surrender West Point, Major John Andre, was hanged as a spy.

In 1804, thee of England were being mobilized to resist invasion by Napoleon Bonaparte.

In 1869, the Indian nationalist leader, Mohandas Gandhi, was born.

In 1889, the first Pan American Conference was held in Washington.

In 1941, in World War II, German armies launched an all-out drive against Moscow.

In 1967, the first black to sit on the U.S. Supreme Court, Thurgood Marshall, was sworn in.

Ten years ago: Indonesia's President Sukarno made a broadcast in Jakarta calling for restoration of order after a thwarted Communist-led attempt to overthrow the Indonesian government.

Five years ago: President Richard M. Nixon received an enthusiastic reception on a visit to Madrid, Spain.

One year ago: The U.S. House of Representatives sharply cut the transitional funds requested for Nixon's return to private life.

Today's birthdays: Comedian Groucho Marx is 80 years old. Writer and film critic Rex Reed is 35.

Heading for a Fall--in High Fashion

WHEN IT'S OFF TO SCHOOL in brisk weather, a girl can be warm—and know she looks fetching—in new clothes that also are easy for her Mom to take care of. At left is a zip suit. Sprinkled with bright hearts and flowers, the waist-hugging, outdoor jacket is worn over a turtleneck and swingy A-line skirt. Center, slacks and sneakers are worn with an "educational" hooded sweatshirt, with moon appliique and the word Night inverted for reading by the wearer. Right, the pants suit in tartan plaid has a short-sleeved jacket to be worn over a long-sleeved sweater or shirt on nippy days. It also has its own matching fringed scarf. (Zip suit by Aileen Girl of acrylic and polyester; slacks and sweatshirt by Ruth Scharf of wear-dated acrilan; plaid suit by Russie of acrylic.)

Task force tours prison

MAPPS corrections task force completes work on standards, goals

JEFFERSON CITY — The corrections task force of the Missouri Action Plan for Public Safety is the first criminal justice task force to complete its work on Missouri's standards and goals. The corrections task force met on July 29, Aug. 28 and Sept. 16 to develop specific plans of action for improving state and local correctional systems in Missouri.

Corrections staff advisor Pat Rackers of the Missouri Council on Criminal Justice said, "The task force members exhibited substantial enthusiasm throughout the standards and goals setting process. We are now looking forward to participation in the public hearings to give citizens an opportunity to comment and make additional recommendations so the program can become as workable as possible."

The task force adopted three goals and six standards:

The first goal is to provide viable alternatives to incarceration on a statewide basis through the use of three standards, proving misdemeanant probation services in all areas of the state, providing sufficient probation and parole officers to reduce caseloads to no more than an average of 50 clients and providing diversion and pretrial release services in all areas of the state.

Goal two is to successfully reintegrate offenders back into their communities by incorporating two standards, development of a statewide comprehensive correctional plan and development and enforcement of minimum standards for all correctional facilities and services in Missouri.

The third goal is to assure fairness and equity to the accused, to the offender and to the ex-offender through a standard elimination of all provisions, statutory and administrative, which place restrictions on ex-offenders in areas of employment, licensing and civil rights.

To arrive at these standards and goals, task force members were in contact with public and private agencies and other organizations involved in the corrections area. On Aug. 28, the task force was given a tour of the Missouri Penitentiary for Men in Jefferson City.

The recommendations of the corrections task force, if accepted, will involve action by the Missouri board of Probation and Parole, the General Assembly, the Supreme Court and the Department of Social Services.

Rackers added that while several of the recommendations will involve additional funding for correctional agencies in Missouri, a number of them may require enabling legislation or repeal of existing statutes.

Task forces in police, courts, juvenile delinquency, community crime prevention and criminal justice information systems were scheduled to finish their work by the end of September. As the standards and goals are finalized by all task forces, preparations are being made for the public hearings phase of the MAPPS project. The hearings are set to begin around the middle of October.

More state senators using newsletters making record high postal bill

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — More Missouri state senators are using newsletters to keep in touch with their constituents, and the result will apparently be a record high Senate postal bill for 1975.

"Another 18 grand before the end of the year wouldn't surprise me," said Ron Kirchoff, the director of the Senate's printing and mailing.

Another $18,000 on top of the $38,499 spent in postage during the first nine months of this year would put the Senate's 34 members well ahead of their spending pace of previous years.

The Senate postage bill for the two-year period ending in December, 1974 was $87,577.

Each senator is authorized $2,500 per year to send mail to his constituents. The allotment is broken into amounts of $275 per month from January through August, and $75 per month for the rest of the year.

"There has been an increase in the number of senators sending newsletters, and those who had been sending them are mailing more," Kirchoff said.

He estimated that about 16 Senate members used newsletter mailings last year, and that he expected 21 would do so before the end of 1975.

According to figures released by Kirchoff's office, three senators are already near their $2,500 spending limitation.

Cassville Republican Emory Melton had spent the most, $2,434, followed by Kansas City Democrat Donald Manford's $2,420 and Sen. Richard Webster, R-Carthage, wih $2,288.

Kirchoff said senators who had overspent their monthly amounts would either reimburse the state, or would not send out any mailings the following month. He said Webster had given him a check for $232 to make up for overspent postage.

Others above the $2,000 mark were Sen. Frank Bild, R-St. Louis, with $2,096 and Sen. Nelson Tinnin, D-Hornersville, with $2,087.

All of those senators send out newsletters.

The increased use of newsletters has not only cost more in postage, but also in the salaries of Kirchoff and his four assistants who print and send them out.

The Senate Accounts Committee, on the advice of Sen. Lawrence Lee, D-St. Louis, recently gave Kirchoff a 12 per cent salary increase frm $17,700 to $20,000 a year. His four employes also received pay raises.

Lee told the committee that the Senate was in danger of losing Kirchoff without the salary increase.

"The American Farmer not only raises crops — he raises the overall standard of living of all Americans.".

Ford said the farmer should not be blamed for rising food prices, even though they he often is.

Contrary to the finger-pointing at the farmer, Ford said food prices held steady last month.

Noting that the inflation rate has dropped substantially over the last year, Ford said, "The good news of one month does not mean that the battle against inflation has been won," adding that victory over inflation will not be achieved at the expense of the nation's farmers.

"I'm here to tell you that your crops will be sold and at fair prices," the President said.

Ford defended the current embargo of further exports of grain to Russia and Poland by saying an effort must be made to stablize the sales.

He said the United States is seeking to fix minimum grain purchases by the Soviet Union over a five-year period, the grain selling at the going market price.

"Most importantly, these agreements will be in the long term best interests of the farmer and the consumer," Ford said.

Under questioning later from the floor, Ford said he is optimistic about a negotiated grain deal with Russia in the near future, but he declined to say when the deal might be completed.

Turning to the energy crisis, Ford continued to chide the Congress.

"The Congress is merely postponing hard choices that must be made, and is attempting to blame high fuel prices on everyone but themselves," said the President.

$101,000 suit filed for damages in accident case

BENTON----A $101,000 damage suit was filed Tuesday in Scott County Circuit Court by L.E. Bechtold and his wife, Alma Lee Bechtold, against David Lee Bailey, Hurley Laster and Goldie Ruth Laster in connection with an automobile accident on Highway 62 in Scott county on Oct. 8, 1970.

The suit charges that Bailey drove and operated an automobile as an agent, servant and employe of Hurley and Goldie Ruth Laster, which he carelessly allowed to collide with an auto driven by Bechtold.

As a result of the accident, Bechtold received injuries to his neck, spine, back and suffered injury to the nerves of the heart, resulting in an improper functioning of the heart, and suffered severe shock to his entire nervous system which resulted in permanent damage.

The suit states that Bechtold has lost wages and will continue to lose wages as a result of the negligence and carelessness of Bailey.

Count one of the suit asks for actual damages in the amount of $75,000.

In count two, Mrs. Bechtold seeks $25,000 stating that her husband has been unable and will continued to be unable to perform his normal work and to earn a living or to perform his husbandly duties, thereby depriving her of the services, association and companionship of her husband.

In count three, Mrs. Bechtold asks judgment in the amount of $1,000 for damage to her automobile.

Mike Moss runs wild

Star running back Mike Moss of the Poplar Bluff Mules has dominated the Northern Division rushing and scoring statistics after the first four weeks of the high school football season, according to figures compiled by the Daily Standard with the aid of the conference's coaches.

After four games, Moss is already well on the way to the coveted 1,000 mark in rushing yardage. The speedy senior has gained 708 yards in 54 carries for an average of 13.1 yards a whack. Moss also leads the division and the conference in scoring. His three touchdowns against Perryville has given him a total of ten for the season and 62 total points. Jackson's Rob Goodwin has 58 points.

Sikeston's Ron Priday is the Northern Division's leading passer. Priday's percentage is not impressive, 13 out of 31 throws, but his tosses have been good for 227 yards and two touchdowns. Poplar Bluff signal caller Tracy Edington is tops in completion percentage (14 of 27) and is second in yards (193).

The Bulldogs' tall and talented tight end, Paul Gilbow, tops the Northern circuit in receptions with 11 and receiving yardage with 214. Jeff Jones of Poplar Bluff has seven catches but only 112 yards.

Cape Central's Eric Lee is the North's leading punter, averaging 39.3 yards per kick after 16 punts.

In the Southern Division, Caruthersville's Audie Tarpley and East Prairie's Grady Williford are waging a spirited battle for the passing lead. Tarpley has the lead in completions (27-16) and in yardage (322-274), but Williford holds a slight edge in percentage (66 per cent to 60 per cent).

The Eagles' all-state receiver Richard Thurmond is way ahead of everyone else in the pass-catching department, Thurmond has already caught 15 aerials for 281 yards and three touchdowns. Caruthersville's Keith Kimbrell has caught ten for 115 yards and two TD's.

Danny Johnson of East Prairie is the South's rushing leader with 385 yards and an 8.0 average gain. Teammate Benny Bradley has gained 322 yards and has an impressive 12.9 average.

Perry Jones of East Prairie is the leading punter in the Southern Division. He has kicked only five times, but carrier a hefty 41-2. yard-per-kick average.

Bradley and Jones are tied for the division scoring lead with 24 points each.

Illmo-Scott City's Steve Hanschen is walking away the offensive honors in the Bootheel Division. Hanschen's 48 total points lead that circuit by a mile. He is also way out front in rushing with 514 yards and an average gain of 10.1 yards.

South Pemiscot's Allen McKay is the passing leader, and teammate James Cooper leads the division's receivers.

SeMo state faces 'super team'

CAPE GIRARDEAU — When Nicholls State University and Southeast Missouri State University clash at Houck Stadium here at 8 Saturday night, it will be a battle of the unbeaten versus the winless.

The Colonels from Thibodaux, La., have brushed their way by the University of Tennessee -- Martin,Jacksonville, Ala., State, and Troy, Ala., State.

Meanwhile, the Indians have bowed to Arkansas Tech, Delta State, and the University of Evansville and have yet to enjoy a lead over an opponent.

Later this fall, Nicholls State will play in the New Orleans' Superdome and, to Southeast Missouri State Coach Jim Lohr, that seems fitting. The Colonels have a "super" team, he said, and it will take a "super" effort for the Tribe to have a chance Saturday night.

"They're probably the best team ever to play on our field," Coach Lohr explained. "They're tough and aggressive. It's hard to describe. Let me put it this way. They run better than Delta, pass better than Delta, block better than Delta, and their defense is better than Delta's."

Delta State, like Nicholls State a member of the gulf South Conference, blasted the Indians 41-10 two weeks ago.

Coach Lohr hopes the return of quarterback Rick Wieser to Southeast Missouri State's starting lineup will provide the spark his club needs going into the Nicholls State game. Wieser, a senior from Topeka, Kan., has been sidelined the first three games of the season with a fractured bone in his throwing hand.

The Indian coach has concluded this is the principal reason his offensive unit has been inept this season.

"We're a triple-option offense," he declared, "and we haven't had an experienced triple-otion quarterback."

In the first three games the Tribe used freshman Maurice Tolson of East St. Louis, Ill., and sophonore Don Backfisch of Dexter as signal callers. Except for a time against Delta State when Tolson was impressive, neither has had much success.

"They're good athletes," Coach Lohr said, "but it takes time to learn the triple option. Right now, they're the most frustrated members of the team."

Other than the insertion of Wieser into the starting lineup, Coach Lohr plans no changes in personnel for Saturday night's game. "We're down mentally," he acknowledged, 'but we've just got to realize that nobody else can get the job done for us. We have to do it ourselves."

The Southeast Missouri State offense is averaging only 84.0 yards rushing per game and a meager 88.3 yards passing. Nicholls State, on the other hand, is gaining 176.0 yards per game on the ground and 94.3 through the air, and last week two Colonels' backs rushed for more than 100 yards each.

They were junior tailback Steve Stropolo of New Orleans, who gained 104 yards, and junior fullback Rickey Lovell of Houma, La., who got 101. Stropolo has gained more than, 1000 yards in his career, while Lovell is currently the squad's rushing leader, gaining 4.3 yards per carry.

Saturday's game will feature two of the top punters in the country. Southeast Missouri State's Mike Wood, a junior from Kirkwood, is averaging 45.3 yards per boot. Nicholls State's Terry Magee, a senior from Bogalusa, La., is not far behind with a 43.9 average. Magee and Wood also kick extra points and field goals, and each his team in scoring.

Nicholls State, coached by Bill Clements, who is in his second year, has fielded a football team only since 1972 and has not met Southeast Missouri State previously.

Following Saturday's game Southeast Missouri State will begin preparations for the beginning of MIAA action. The Indians are at home on Oct. 11 against the University of Missouri -- Rolla.

BASKETBALL DRILLS OPEN

While Southeast Missouri's high school football season approaches its midway point Friday, basketball's begin to thump the hardwoods of non-football schools.

Basketball drills officially opened at more than 50 schools throughout the Bootheel Wednesday, the first official day of drills allowed by the Missouri State High School Activities Association.

And the big question often offered is...What can Southeast Missouri do for an enchor? Three of the district teams emerged as state champs last March to set a president and hard act to follow.

Charleston, Lilbourn and Advance swept to state titles in their respective class 3A, 2A and 1A divisions and face an uphill assignment to repeat the feat.

We'll begin our visits to the area schools next week and hopefully will be able to report a sweep of next year's state tournaments.

BICENTENNIAL MEDAL

There is a new twist to that coin you see being flipped before most college football games this fall. In fact, officials could be asking team captains if they want Paul Revere or the Minutemen, instead of heads or tails.

The coin used is likely to be the official 1975 Bicentennial commemorative medal, thanks to the efforts of the National Collegiate Athletic Association (NCAA) and a donation from the International Paper Company of New York.

The medal commemorates the famous ride of Paul Revere and depicts the Minuteman Statue on Lexington Common as a tribute to the small band of volunteers who "fired the shot heard round the world."

The NCAA, a member of the National Bicentennial Sports Alliance (NBSA), is encouraging all member schools to use the medal to call attention to its availability. International Paper is picking up the cost of providing the medals to the schools.

The medal is issued by the American Revolution Bicentennial Administration (ARBA) and produced by the United States Mint. The ARBA also sponsors the NBSA as a means of stimulating and encouraging participation in the Bicentennial.

Net revenues from the sale of the medals are used primarily to support state and local Bicentennial programs around the nation.

Available in bronze ($3.50) and silver ($15.00), the medals can be ordered by sending a check or money order to: ARBA, P.O. Box 1976, San Francisco, California 94101.

Order forms for official 1975 commemoratives can be obtained from local chapters of the Disabled American Veterans, who have joined with the ARBA to help raise funds for Bicentennial projects and programs.

Pressures mount on baseball managers

SPARKY ANDERSON

CINCINNATI (AP) — Sparky Anderson, testy over speculation that his job could be in jeopardy if the Cincinnati Reds stumble in post-season play, says he's weary f second guessing by the press and public.

"I could care less what the writers—or the fans—think of me," said Anderson, who hopes to end Cincinnati's 35-year world championship drought.

"You don't belong up here if you worry about losing your job," said the Reds' white-haired manager, in a rare combative mood.

The Reds, who stormed to an incredible 20-game margin over defending National League champion Los Angeles, are readying for their next text: a best-of-five playoff series against potent Pittsburgh for the NL title.

Cincinnati has suffered three crushing post-season defeats in the past five years after amassing the best record in baseball during that span. Anderson said press attacks on members of his profession have left him wondering whether it pays to be a nice guy. He said he no longer reads the sports pages because of critical articles.

"The only thing I read is the box scores. I only believe 50 per cent of what I read, then divide that by 20 and go from there. I realize everything has to be glamorous and flary, but I've been misquoted so many times I'm sick of it. So much of it is trash," he said.

Anderson, who at age 41 has managed the Reds to the winningest NL record since 1907, says the second-guessers have taken the fun out of the job.

"I can't walk into the office of a doctor, a lawyer or a sports writer and do their jobs. Why do they think they can manage?" he asked incredulously.

"I'm just George Anderson and I don't know any other way to be. I don't put any value on money or in wearing a major league uniform," he said.

He finds it galling that winning managers reap the glory and the losers are branded incompetent.

"Is Walter Alston any dumber because he didn't win this year? Am I smarter? Hell no. It's because we were good enough to win this year."

He said Philadelphia Manager Danny Ozark is a case of negative press. Ozark has weathered a critical press to sign a new contract.

"Can you tell me that a writer who rips him knows more about baseball than Danny? I won't tolerate someone who gets personal with me or my players. I's would whip him—or he would whip me," said Anderson.

DANNY MURTAUGH

PITTSBURGH (AP) — After each baseball season, Danny Murtaugh sits down with his family to decide whether to return as manager of the Pittsburgh Pirates.

He laughed Wednesday at the notion that his son, Tim, may soon suggest he devote fulltime to making home movies of his grandchildren.

You see, Tim Murtaugh was recently named manager of the Charleston, W.Va., Charlies and, at age 31, he has climbed to the top of the Pirates' farm system.

"We all get that personal satisfaction from having a son follow in the father's footsteps," the 57-year-old father said while awaiting the National League playoffs in Cincinnati.

It's anybody's guess what the future holds for Tim Murtaugh, though his rapid climb to the Class AAA International League will surely prompt speculation.

Of course, speculation has never caused much concern to his father. Each year, he is prodded about whether he'll retire. Each year, he waits until after the season to make his announcement. This year is no differennt. "I have no definite plans yet,' Murtaugh said.

General Manager Joe Brown has said Danny Murtaugh can manage the Pirates as long as he wishes.

Asked about the promotion of Tim Murtaugh, Brown said the decision was was made solely by Harding Peterson, director of the Pirates' farm system.

However, Brown has known Tim Murtaugh since he was a child, and he has watched his progress as a manager.

"Everyone is his own man, everyone is different to an extent, but I would say Tim is similar to Danny as far as being low-key, not flashy, and in the way he handles problems," Brown said.

That ability to maintain an even keel has been Danny Murtaugh's main strength as a manager, he added. "He minimizes the high points and the low points, and he only celebrates victory after it's really earned...and he has earned many victories," Brown said.

"We talk baseball when we're together, sure" Danny said of his son , "but I can't really say I know a whole lot about Tim's approach to the game. And since he's in the minors, his job is really different from mine."

After a playing career that included four seasons as a Pirate second baseman, Danny Murtaugh got his managing start in New Orleans, where his picture still hangs at the Home Plate Cafe.

"I spent quite a few hours playing the pinball machines at that place," he recalled.

Later in his rocking chair, Murtaugh glanced at a newspaper article about the death of his friend and colleague, Casey Stengel.

"You know, sometimes Casey would use lefties against lefties to pinch hit and do other things that might have seemed strange at the time," Murtaugh said,

"But when you talked to him later, you always found out that he had very sound reasons for everything he did. He was an excellent manager."

DARRELL JOHNSON

BOSTON (AP) — The scene was typical of any winning game. Manager Darrell Johnson stretched and smiled when the news came through that the Boston Red Sox had won the American League East championship.

"I'm just as excited as anybody else, but I just don't show it," Johnson said, still grinning. "It's my nature. My wife has called me 'Stoney' for years."

Johnson, just turned 48 and a former reserve catcher in a major league career which spanned just 134 games with seven clubs, is low-keyed all the way, pleasant and patient with all who approach him.

He shows traces of gray in his well-trimmed hair. His stature is that of an athlete, or one whose playing career has just ended. His clothes range from conservative to sporty, never overly mod.

Johnson's ways are deliberate. He doesn't rush a decision if it can be helped. Patience is one of his top attributes. He seeks advice from coaches and others, and weighs it. He has a temper, but it ignites only when he has to support his players on the field.

"You do what you have to do," Johnson says with a shrug. "No one likes to take the heat at any time, especially me. But there are occasions you can't help it. You have to try to help the team, not hurt it."

Johnson and the Red Sox turned things around this year after his rookie season as a major league manager in 1974. He wasn't mugged in a robbery attempt at a motel room and the Red Sox didn't blow any seven-game lead—both of which happened last year.

The Red Sox won the pennant under rookie Manager Dick Williams in 1967. The next year Williams hired his old friend Darrell as pitching coach. Williams was fired at the tail end of the 1969 campaign, but the Red Sox kept Johnson as a minor league pitching coach and scout for the 1970 campaign.

Johnson's 1974 Red Sox led the AL East by seven games with six weeks to play. Then came a whopping collapse. Plagued by injuries, the Red Sox' offense went into a deep freeze. The team finished seven games behind Baltimore—in third place.

North clash highlights 11 game district schedule

A big conference clash between Poplar Bluff and Jackson and a handful of out-of-state contests highlight a big 11-game high school football schedule for this Friday night.

Both the Indians and the Mules are undefeated at 4-0 and both clubs are ranked fourth statewide in their respective classifications. Poplar Bluff is already 2-0 in conference play, while the Indians won their only league contest. Both clubs have displayed explosive offenses and stingy defenses. The game will be played at Jackson.

Perryville and Charleston will both be looking for their first conference victory when the Bluejays host the Pirates in the only other Northern Division game.

Southern Division co-leaders East Prairie and Caruthersville will seek to remain undefeated. The Tigers host Malden while the Eagles travel to Portageville.

The most interesting non-conference games send Cape Central to Paducah, Ky. and Wentzville to Sikeston. The Tigers suffered an embarrassing loss to Carbondale last week and will be out to try to put things back together against perennial Bluegrass State power Paducah Tilghman. And the Sikeston Bulldogs will try to record their third win in a row at home against the Indians of the Gateway Conference.

Dexter hosts Hayti in a battle between two winless squads. The Bearcats have been plagued with injuries in what was already a rebuilding year and have yet to score a point.

In other Friday night games, Paragould, Ark. is at Kennett, Chaffee goes to Illmo-Scott City, Doniphan visits Pocahontas, Ark. and South Pemiscot hosts Piggott, Ark.

Valle athlete leads MIAA

With a third of the 1975 college football season history, certain statistical categories are starting to take definite shape in the Missouri Intercollegiate Athletic Association.

Southwest Missouri State's Gino Travline moved in front of the league's ballcarriers with a 115 yard performance in last weekend's 7-7 deadlock against Eastern Illinois. The junior fullback from Gary, Ind. has 375 yards on 83 carries for a 4.5 average per carry.

A pair of Northwest Missouri State runners are early threats to Travline's lead. Freshman Dan Montgomery, out of Parkway North High School in St. Louis, has gained 292 yards while teammate Steve Miller, a junior from Kansas City, has garnered 219.

Missouri-Rolla quarterback Greg Haug, who prepped at Valle High in Ste. Genevieve, appears on his way to topping the MIAA's passing categories for the second season in a row. His 117 attempts, 66 completions, .564 pass completion percentage, 784 yards and four touchdowns are currently being challenged only by Northeast Missouri State's Tom Williamson (Unionville).

Haug's biggest booster in the completion department is UMR receiver Stu Duinlop. The Springfield Parkview graduate has pulled down 32 passes for 303 yards.

An interesting stat match is occurring in the punting category. Mike Wood of Southeast Missouri State is in the process of unseating Central Missouri State's Bill Mullis as the conference's "golden toe". Mullis, the Warrensburg athlete who paced all MIAA punters in 1974, is booting them for an average of 4.2 yards less (45.2 to 41.0) than Wood, a native of Kirkwood.

A pair of Northeast Missouri State return specialists have been making a name for themselves this season.

Mike Laususe, a product of Normandy High, in St. Louis, has brought back six kickoffs for 254 yards (42.3 average). In the Bulldogs' 45-18 win over Missouri Western last Saturday, Laususe scored touchdowns on KO returns of 89 and 86 yards.

That same game saw Gary Evans, from Mendon, Ill., intercept three passes for 108 yards, an average of 36 yards a theft.

Players of the Week

EDITOR'S NOTE: Due to the similarity of the statistics, performances and team outcomes, two players each were selected on offense and defense.

OFFENSE - Greg Haug, University of Missouri-Rolla: Quarterback Greg Haug completed 26 (a new UMR record) of 38 passes for 222 yards in the Miner's 20-20 tie last weekend with Kansas State College - Pittsburg. The Ste. Genevieve native tossed two TD aerials and ran for another.

Stu Dunlop, University of Missouri- Rolla: UMR wide receiver Stu Dunlop flagged down 15 passes for 110 yards and caught a pair of TD flips. The Springfield Parkview grad's second scoring catch came with seconds left in Saturday's game to knot the score at 20-20.

DEFENSE - Marti Rave, Northeast Missouri State: Marti Rave, a sophomore linebacker from Earlville, Ill., produced six solo tackles, 15 assists and one pass interception in Northeast Missouri's 45-18 triumph over Missouri Western.

Gary Coppinger, Northwest Missouri State: A soph lineabacker from Aquinas High School in St. Louis, Coppinger recorded seven unassisted tackles, 14 assists and one fumble recovery in Northwest Missouri's 17-6 win against Mankato State.

Big Red entertain Giants Sunday

ST. LOUIS, Mo. -- Frustrated by an overtime defeat to the Dallas Cowboys, the St. Louis Football Cardinals return home to take on NFC Eastern Division opponent the New York Giants on Sunday. Kickoff is set for 1:05 p.m. (CDT) in Busch Memorial Stadium.

The Cardinals will have to bounce back from a disappointing 37-31 defeat to the Dallas Cowboys in an exciting overtime game in Texas Stadium. It was the first overtime game in the Big Red's history and came after the Cardinals had rallied from a 31-17 deficit in the fourth quarter of regulation time.

The Giants, playing their third of three straight season-opening division road games, where stopped bythe Washington Redskins, 49-13, last week in Washington after opening their season with a victory over the Philadelphia EAgles.

The NFC East's two undefeated teams, meanwhile, will both be on the road -- Dallas (2-0) visiting Detroit in a Monday night game and Washington (2-0) taking on the Eagle in Philadelphia.

To defeat the Giants, a team that gave the Cardinals two tough games last year before losing, St. Louis must bounce back from the emotional defeat to the Cowboys, achieved on a three-yard touchdown pass from quarterback Roger Staubach to tight end Billy Joe DuPree with 7:07 left in the overtime.

After scoring twice in the fourth quarter to gain a 31-31 tie -- the final score a 37-yard touchdown pass from quarterback Jim Hart to wide receiver Mel Gray, the Cardinals won the overtime coin toss, took the kickoff and moved to the Dallas 26-yard line, when on a second-down pass play, Cowboy linebacker LeRoy Jordan intercepted Hart's pass and returned it 38 yards to the Cardinals' 37.

It took Dallas nine plays to go the 37 yards for the winningscore. The final pass was Staubach's 23rd completion in 34 attempts, and gave him 307 passing yards. Hart had completed 15 of 32 passes for 314 yards and four touchdowns, equally his career one-game high.

In all, the teams combined for 880 total yards, with Dallas winning the battle, 448-432. Hart's TD completions were 80 yards to wide receiver Earl Thomas, 37 and 23-yarders to Gray and a 35-yarder to tight end Jackie Smith. For Smith, it was his 38th career TD reception -- tying him with Bobby Joe Conrad as the second highest total in team history.

Last year, the Cardinals defeated the Giants twice but not after big scares. The Big Red won in the season's 11th week, 23-21, in New Haven, Conn., on Jim Bakken's 36-yard field goal with three seconds to play. In the last week of the season, the Giants led 14-0 at halftime but the Cardinals roared back for a 26-14 victory and the NFC East title.

The Cardinals and Giants will meet again in three weeks-- on Saturday, October 25 at Shea Stadium in New York. Itr will be the first time St. Louis has ever played in Shea Stadium.

Next week, the Cardinals will have another rugged road assignment -- taking on the Washington Redskins in a Monday night game. Then the Big Red return to St. Louis on October 19 to take on the Philadelphia Eagles

NFL Congress

WASHINGTON (AP) — Owners of National Football League teams are telling Congress their side of the labor dispute between the teams and the players.

Representatives of the executive committee of the NFL's Management Council were to testify today before the House subcommittee on labor-management relations chaired by Rep. Frank Thompson Jr., D--N.J.

The panel called the hearings to determine whether new legislation should be recommended to help resolve disputes between the owners and the players.

Representatives of the players testified before the subcommittee on Monday. Thompson said then that legislation to expedite cases brought by athletes before the National Labor Relations Board might be in order but that the panel first wanted to hear from the owners.

Golfers bow

The SHS girls golf team opened their 1975 season Tuesday afternoon, losing to a good Cape Central squad 221-243.

Cindy Sander of the Tigers was medalist, firing a nine-hole total of 51. Tanya Hesselrode had the low score for Sikeston, shooting a 57. Beth Hambrick shot a 58, Lisa Wasson scored 61 and Tammy Houchin carded a 67.

The match was the third of the season for the Central team.

Sikeston will host the same Tiger squad next Monday on the Sikeston Country Club course. The Bulldogs are coached by Mrs. Rosalie Snider.

Team leader

COLUMBIA — Former Dexter High Schooltrack and cross country star Buddy Lawrence is the captain of this year's University of Missouri cross country squad.

The team lost its first meet last week, dropping a 26-30 decision to a powerful illinois team. Lawrence finished fourth in that meet with a time of 24:59, his best on the Mizzou course. Nationally acclaimed Illinois star Craig Virgin was first.

Lawrence is a senior at the University and has lettered the past three years. The 1972 graduate of Dexter High School is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Yewell Lawrence of Dexter.

The Missouri squad is coached by Robin Lingle. The Tigers will host the Missouri Intercollegiate cross country championship this Saturday at 11:00 a.m.

Rebels win

ESSEX — The Richland Rebels girls volleyball squad continued to fly high Tuesday evening as they came from behind to down Puxico in two out of three games.

The Rebs dropped the opener of the match by the lopsided score of 15-12. But they rallied to capture the last two games 15-6 and 15-2, with Mary Ann Williamson leading the way. Williamson scored 12 points, in addition to several saves.

The Rebels now are 4-1.

The Richland B team remained undefeated by sweeping the Injuns 15-11 and 15-4. Theresa Kinder and Deborah Hampton paced the Richland effort.

The Rebels will be back in action tonight when they host Advance.

A good word for Kissinger

By JOHN PINKERMAN
Editor,
Copley News Service

Maybe his odd assortment of enemies will stay off Henry Kissinger's back for a short time.

The fragile nature of the Egyptian-Israeli agreement notwithstanding, the secretary of state has done it again, and it would seem that he deserves the heartfelt thanks of all peace-loving people in the world, including his across-the-board (extreme rightists to vocal left-wingers) critics in the United States.

Perhaps Kissinger's premarital night life exhibitions had something to do with building up his foes — who quite properly may have looked for more dignity from the secretary of state.

Perhaps the lone fact that he was a Harvard man had something to do with the ultra-conservatives turning their backs on him. Perhaps his long and useful association with Vice President Nelson Rockefeller frightened a segment of the sizable anti-Rockefeller clique.

Compared to his accomplishments and his devotion to his country those bases of criticism should have very little standing among clear thinking people — people who believe in peace and people who are realistic enough to understand that America has a stake in almost any development almost anyplace in the world.

And, considering what Kissinger has accomplished, consider the alternatives if he had failed — or, worse, if he had never tried.

This German-born Jew (May 27, 1923) came as an immigrant to the United States in 1938.

His record since arrival should be a model for any American, native or foreign born. He served in the Army from 1943 to '46. He studied at Harvard, won a doctor's degree and taught at the university.

In government and private service, he has labored in the vineyards and in the higher echelons. He worked in the Operations Research Office, with the Psychological Strategic Board, has been director of the Study Group on Nuclear Weapons and Foreign Relations, has been a consultant to the Weapons System Evaluation Group of the Joint Chiefs of Staff. He has been director of the National Security Council, and now for several years secretary of state.

Richard Nixon got the credit but it really was Kissinger who arranged the detente with Mao Tse-tung and Red China.

If you choose to believe this is a bad deal and Kissinger (or Nixon) should get blame not credit, consider the alternative. The alternative would have been a tightening instead of a loosening of tensions. And, up to now anyway, Kissinger's skill made this detente possible without America turning its back on the Republic of China on Taiwan.

Kissinger also led the way in the detente with Moscow, if you consider that a plus. If you think it is a minus, again consider the alternative. The alternative well might have been an impossible confrontation between the world's two atomic war giants — in the Mideast, where Kissinger's skill is most apparent, and in many other areas of the world. It is an uneasy peace the United States enjoys with Russia, but it is an improvement over the worst days of the Cold War.

Most Americans consider Vietnam a dark chapter in U.S. history, but without Kissinger's tireless and often discouraging negotiations with North Vietnam, U.S. soldiers might still be dying in that faraway land. His accomplishment was not the ultimate, but it eliminated the daily U.S. casualty lists, a rather depressing alternative.

Now, he has delivered in the shuttle diplomacy that failed last March but succeeded after more exhausting negotiations in Cairo, Alexandria, Jerusalem and Tel Aviv. It is not an ideal solution but it is preferable to an alternative of war — a war that certainly would bring more energy crises to America and perhaps even that unthinkable nuclear confrontation between Washington and Moscow.

Henry Kissinger is a loyal and most skillful American diplomat. He deserves the Nobel Prize for Peace he received for Vietnam. He also deserves the thanks of all Americans.

Readers make a newspaper interesting

By PAT GROJEAN

Think of someone you really enjoy talking to or being with or that you find just plain fascinating. Now, sit down at a telephone and give me a call.

Really -- I'm serious! As feature editor, I am always searcing for people to talk to about their lives, their hobbies or just something they do or have done which is out of the ordinary.

As just one person, it is hard to know about every interesting person, so I — and the rest of the newsstaff — must rely on you out there in readerland to help us.

Actually, it is you, the readers, that make the paper interesting by telling us things we may not know, or telling us about people who would make interesting features.

I won't promise to get around to everyone real quickly, because stories often take time to do, but I would be thrilled to hear your ideas. And I'm sure many out there have some good ideas. Maybe, it is just something you would like to see a story about or that you know of a possible starting place for a story.

Maybe you know someone who has done something unusual during their lives ... like the wonderful woman, Mrs. Elder, who I did a story on a couple of years ago and who had played the piano during silent movie days in Sikeston.

Maybe someone you are acquainted with knows a piece of interesting history about the area or someone who has a rather unusual hobby or does something rather amazing for his or her age -- young or old---or abilities. There are endless possibilities. I just need your help and will welcome ideas.

It always helps to know what our readers are interested in, and the only way to know that is to hear from you.

In the almost three years I've been feature editor, I've learned many things, from how school lunches are planned to all about polled Herefords and soybean cyst nematodes - subjects which I previously knew nothing about. So, you see, I'm wide open for new ideas and new adventures for myself and readers.

I just wish I could take care of all those terrific ideas I know you will be sending me. All I can say is I will do my best and will probably pass some of them along to other staff members.

Oh -- by the way, my telephone numbr is 471-1137 or you can write me or any staff member in care of The Daily Standard.

I'm sitting here fight now -- unless I'm outdoing a story --- waiting to hear from you. So, get busy and think (— and thanks in advance)!

SIKESTON, SCOTT COUNTY, MISSOURI THURSDAY, OCTOBER 2, 1975 NUMBER 185

Costs of farm, industrial goods push index up

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rising prices for farm products and industrial goods pushed the nation's wholesale price index up six-tenths of one per cent in September, the Labor Department reported today.

The September increase in wholesale prices was slightly below the August gain of eight-tenths of one per cent, despite a 4.3 per cent increase in prices for farm products, especially for vegetables, milk and livestock.

Prices of industrial commodities in September increased seven-tenths of one per cent, the largest increase since last November when they rose eight-tenths of one per cent. Prices of fuels and metals led the increase in industrial goods.

Prices of farm products had decreased 1.5 per cent in August, while industrial prices had risen six-tenths of one per cent.

The Labor Department said it was unusual that although prices of farm products and industrial goods increased in September, the over-all increase in prices was below the August increase.

This occurred because the over-all index is adjusted independently for seasonal price variations, instead of being adjusted on the basis of its individual components.

The Labor Department said the procedure can lead to contradictory results in times when prices fluctuate widely, as they have in recent months. The department said it plans to revise its procedures in 1976 to eliminate such contradictions.

Another barometer of the nation's economic activity will be announced Friday when the Labor Department reports on the unemployment rate in September.

The jobless rate is not expected to reveal any major changes in the continuing problem of unemployment.

Unemployment was 8.4 per cent of the labor force — about eight million workers — in August. Wholesale prices in August increased eight-tenths of 1 per cent.

For the three-month period ending in August, wholesale prices increased at an annual rate of 7.7 per cent. A good portion of increases in wholesale prices are passed along to the consumer, especially in the food and fuel areas.

The administration considers the nation's basic inflation rate — that means after one-time price shocks are stripped away — to be about 7 per cent for the foreseeable future.

Masters at mime

Mime, an ancient art form with contemporary ideas, will be introduced to Sikeston residents and students during the week of Oct. 12, when Sophie Wibaux and Bert Houle perform here. The performances are sponsored locally by the Sikeston Arts and Education Council and Missouri State Council on the Arts. The artists will perform during school hours at Sikeston elementary schools and Sikeston Junior High School and will present a public performance at 7:30 p.m. Oct. 16 at Sikeston Activity Center.

Mimists to perform for students and public

Bert Houle and Sophie Wibaux, popular mime actors, will present performances in Sikeston Oct. 13-17 as part of a 20-week national tour supported in part by the National Endowment for the Arts dance touring program and produced by the Loretto-Hilton Theatre in St. Louis.

The actors will perform for students at Sikeston elementary schools and Sikeston Junior High School during the week and will present a public performance at 7:30 p.m. Oct. 16 at Sikeston activity center.

The program is being presented locally by the Sikeston Arts and Education Council and Missouri State Council on the Arts. Tickets for the public performance may be purchased at Bank of Sikeston.

Mime is an increasingly popular art form. It is a theater language using expressive movement instead of dialogue. The performers, agile as dancers, wear white face paint and contrasting make-up so that their features clearly express emotion.

Innovative music and lighting are the main external elements added to create atmosphere. The numerous dramatic pieces making up the program cover a wide variety of subjects, some treated seriously and others satirically.

In one piece, the imagination is encouraged by a folk ballad-poem, and a human and

Gin burglarized

NEW MADRID — Bootheel Gin, 300 Virginia St., was burglarized sometime Wednesday night and items valued between $1,200 and $1,400 were reported stolen, according to City Marshal Virgil "Flip" Dees, who also reported two weekend burglaries.

Items taken included tools valued at $600, a calculator, check writing machine and an adding machine.

Dees said a front door glass had been broken.

Dees also reported today that three barbecued pork shoulders were stolen sometime Saturday night from Halford's Chat 'n Chew Restaurant on Highway 61 North. The meat had been left to smoke in a locked pit, Dees said.

The Rev. Edward L. Watkins reported to police that a color television set had been stolen from the United Methodist Church parsonage, 623 Mill St., sometime Saturday night. The method of entering the house was not recorded, according to Dees.

Award winner

Matt Basham, left, chief operator of the Sikeston Waste Water Treatment Plant, is given the Warren A. Kramer Award by William Bess, chairman of the Board of Municipal Utilities. The award is made each year by the Missouri Water and Sewerage Conference.

Basham wins state award

Matt Basham, chief operator of the Sikeston Waste Water Treatment Plant, has been awarded the Warren A. Kramer Award.

The award is given each year by the Missouri Water and Sewerage Conference to a person in the water and waste water field in recognition of his responsible interest and participation in continuing education for self- improvement in the practice of the operational and technical skill in the field of water and waste water treatment.

The award also recognized Basham for trustworthy performance of duty and integrity and loyalty to his work which characterized the life of Warren A. Kramer. Kramer was founder and a director of the Water and Waste Water School at Neosho.

This is the second time an employe of the water and waste water treatment department of the Sikeston Board of Municipal Utilities has received the award and the first time in Missouri that two recipients from the same city have received it. The award was previously won by Dick Lucy, superintendent of the water and sewage treatment plant.

5 injured in traffic accidents

Five persons received minor injuries in three area traffic accidents Wednesday and early today, the highway patrol announced today.

Two men were injured in a single-vehicle accident on Highway 160 two miles west of Doniphan at 12:15 a.m. today.

The accident occurred when a car driven by Ralph Bridges, 46, of Doniphan failed to stop at a stop sign, ran through a T-intersection and struck a rock embankment.

Bridges and a passenger, Donnie Collins, 23, of Alton, received minor injuries but refused treatment.

Donnie King, 26, of Baldwyn, Miss., suffered minor abdominal injuries at 10:30 p.m. Wednesday on Interstate 55 near New Madrid when a cross-tie fell off another truck traveling northand hit a tire on Bridges' truck, causing his abdomen to strike the steering wheel.

Bridges was taken to Missouri Delta Community Hospital in Sikeston.

Donnie Ray Briney, 34, of Corning, Ark., and Dale Riley, 39, of Poplar Bluff were injured in a two-vehicle accident at 6:35 p.m. Wednesday on Highway 67 at the Missouri-Arkansas state line.

The collision occurrred, according to the patrol, when a southbound jeep driven by Briney crossed the centerline and Riley, driving north, swerved his car to miss Brieny at the same time Briney swerved in the same direction.

The men were not hospitalized.

Police find stolen trailer

EAST PRAIRIE — A four-wheel farm trailer, which had been stolen Tuesday night from T. F. and C. R. Hunter Farm at New Madrid, was found at 4 a.m. Wednesday by police near the intersection of North Lincoln and Highway 105.

According to police, the trailer had come loose from a vehicle that had been pulling it and the trailer had hit a utility pole.

Volunteer group will work with parolees

By PAT GROJEAN

Crime continues to be in the news as people search for new ways to combat and lessen the wave. A recently formed Talk Force on Volunteerism in Sikeston may be working on projects that could lower the local rate.

The force, made up mainly of Sikeston residents, is aiming its efforts at helping those on probation or parole and those recently released from prison who are under no supervision.

Plans have been worked out and volunteers are now being sought to work on an individual basis with p ersons previously convicted of relatively minor offenses.

About 150 people are on probation or parole in Scott County alone, and approximately 90 of whom live in Sikeston, according to Tom Skinner of Dexter, probation officer for Scott County. With that many people to serve, it is very difficult for a probation officer to develop as much involvement with each client as may be necessary.

Studies have shown that people who received individual help or who have someone they can turn to while on probation or parole most often tend to have no further criminal charges. In this way such a community volunteer program could possibly reduce the local crime rate.

Volunteers would be trained by state Board of Probation and Parole or by the Community Service Center of Cape Girardeau. The CSC works only with people who have been released from prison and are under no supervision of the law.

Volunteers would work with people between the ages of 17 and 25 who committed relatively minor offenses and who are residents of this area. One client would be assigned per volunteer, Skinner said.

Although there are no real qualifications for volunteers, they must be people who will work directly with a client at least one hour per week. Volunteers could help with locating jobs or housing, providing transportation, tutoring, providing some other skill which would help a client or just by being a friend – someone to talk to.

The two agencies – CSC and Board of Probation and Parole would remain in close contact with volunteers and help with any large problems.

Persons interested in becoming a volunteer may call telephone number 471-4992 from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. weekdays and leave their name and address. They will then be contacted by a task force member or worker in one of the two agencies.

The long- range goal of the community - oriented task force is to develop a sense of commitment by Sikeston citizens toward other residents. It eventually hopes to get involved with volunteers in all areas, not just in the area of crime.

At this time the two- month-old force is working on promotional and recruitment activities for the two projects.

Economic news is good

ST. LOUIS (AP) — "The economic news is all good" and will continue to be so if the United States acts prudently, says Secretary of the Treasury William E. Simon.

Simon indicated Wednesday that financial indicators, particularly the gross national product, demonstrate the economy is continuing a slow but stable recovery.

The GNP could increase to as much as 8 per cent in the third quarter when official figures are released later this month, he told a group of business and civic leaders.

Additionally, he said, the rate of inflation is down almost 50 per cent from its double-digit peak at the end of last year.

People are not aware of the economic upswing because of "a lag between the public's perceptions and the facts as they are happening now," the secretary said.

Saying that a president "can do just so much," Simon criticized Congress for adopting legislative programs that he said could lead to a budget deficit as high as $75 billion this year.

In order to slow inflation, he said, Congress should not pass any new spending programs and should cut present programs by a fixed percentage.

Other steps necessary to speed a complete economic recovery, according to Simon, include implementation of an energy program, cutting back on money for regulatory agencies and revamping the welfare system.

Simon defended the idea of welfare cuts, saying they did not indicate a lack of government compassion for the poor.

"Is compassion formulating policies that increase inflation and jepardize productivity," he asked.

He said major policy changes must occur as the country prepares to provide the 18 million to 19 million new jobs and $4½ trillion necessary to bolster the economy in the next decade.

Ford promises farmers fair prices for crops

OMAHA, Neb. (AP)—A relaxed and smiling President Ford returned to the city of his birth Wednesday, defending his farm policies and assuring farmers that their crops will be sold at fair prices.

Ford also took the opportunity to criticize the Congress for its inability to come up with a new energy bill.

Ford's visit, the first here since he became the nation's chief executive, was made in connection with the Nebraska-Iowa White House Conference on Economic and Domestic Affairs.

In all, Ford spent about 75 minutes, about 15 minutes longer than scheduled, at the podium, giving a formal address and answering 17 questions from the conference floor.

Commending the efforts of the farmers, Ford said, "The American farmer has produced a miracle of abundance which is the envy of the rest of the

The price of a first-class postage stamp, now a dime, could soar to 16 cents over the next two years as a result of the recently negotiated contract between the United States Postal Service and its 600,000 workers.

Though both sides are downplaying the price tag, reported the Washington Post, the contract between the United States Postal Service and its 600,000 workers for the next three years could cost the stamp-buying public $1.8 billion a year by 1978.

The wage-fringe package approved in late July calls for 10 postal pay raises over the next three years. Four of the increases would be "up front" increases worth $1,500 each to employes over the life of the contract.

"The big money," said the Post,' "is certain to be the six open-end raises that the USPS has promised each of its employes, based on the rate of inflation. Those boosts easily could drive the wage-fringe package well over the $1 billion that has been used by some officials and union leaders in discussions of cost...

"The new agreement ... guarantees even larger pay raises over the next three years and six, rather than four, additional increases directly tied to the cost of living ...

"Even before they agreed to the wage-fringe benefit package, postal officials said they would have to raise first-class rates to 13 cents this year. With mail volume dropping, and the Postal Service projecting a $591-million loss this year even with higher rates, the price of stamps has nowhere to go but up."

RESHUFFLING INCOME BECOMES POLITICAL ISSUE

Despite what some members of Congress and the Administration may think, there is increasing resistance among the working people as taxpayers against the increasing role of the Government in its drive to narrow income differences among Americans.

The Government refers to its action as "transfer payments," a technical sounding term, simply meaning the transfer of income from one group of individuals to another via the tax system.

Such transfer payments--in the form of welfare, Social Security, unemployment compensation, veterans' benefits, Medicare and Medicaid, to name the major types--will surpass 150 billion dollars this year, an amount five times as large as a decade ago and growing rapidly with congressional sanction and support.

Now add similar payments made by state and local governments, and the total runs to 177 billions, according to U.S. News & World Report's survey.

Taxpaying workers are realizing that these "transfer payments" today comprise $1 out of every $7 of personal income in the U.S.--an increase from $1 in $20 some years ago. These payouts provide more income for Americans on the whole than interest, dividends, rents or profits--and are exceeded as an income producer only by wages and salaries.

The survey confirms that "transfer payments" furnish more than half of the available income of Americans below the so-called poverty line--and is spent on millions more families above that line.

Further proof that Government is squarely in the business of reshuffling incomes is that, at the federal level, "transfer payments" account for 42 per cent of Government spending, up from 26 per cent in 1965.

Most of us can't comprehend the vast numbers of people who are now on the collecting end. More than 30 million receive Social Security payments, about 18 million get food stamps, 15 million are on welfare. It is estimated 14 million people will collect unemployment benefits, and millions more will get veterans' pensions, school lunch aid, health and medical-insurance benefits.

The survey reports that many people receive more than one form of "transfer payment." Eliminate the overlap, and an estimated 1 in every 4 Americans in 1975 will collect one form or another of income equalizer.

So if these facts are enough to make you angry, there are new programs in Congress to aid people more and spend more in the old programs.

So we say it is time the working-taxpayers get into politics for the 1976 elections or you ain't seen nothing yet as Government redistributes your income to more non-workers and drones on the public teat.

CONGRESSIONAL FURY ON GRAIN

The 1976 elections are more than a year away, but two Republican members of Congress from Kansas are busily engaged these days in putting daylight between themselves and the Gerald Ford presidency on the important issue to their constitutents of selling grain to the Soviet Union. Sen. Bob Dole pointedly declined to join President Ford recently in Overland Park; he now has written a critical open letter to the President. Rep. Keith Sebelius, representing a Kansas wheat district, has charged the administration with a "breach of faith" with farmers in the current ban on grain sales to Russia.

Senator Dole particularly is upset that the Department of Agriculture is being left out in the cold in current negotiations with the U.S.S.R. Those talks are designed to lead to a grain purchasing agreement between the two nations covering several years. Early groundwork for such an agreement has been conducted by the Departments of State and Labor, with nary a public word from Agriculture.

Dole also took pains to point out in his open letter that President Ford on May 1 stated flatly that "our farm products must have unfettered access to world markets." Sebelius also questioned the Ford policy of "allowing George Meany, John Dunlop and others to dictate American farm policy at the expense of farmers."

"It is a paradox of enormous irony," Sebelius told his constituents. "The administration refused government support for a target price that could help keep farmers from going out of business if prices fell. Instead, they asked farmers to produce and promised a free-market agriculture. Yet, when the farmer's price inched over the cost of production, the promise was broken, the free-market concept shelved and, at the bidding of organized labor, government controls were placed on farm exports."

A lot of persons recently have been asking similar questions. Who in the United States is making policy on foreign agricultural trade? And what is the price going to be to those in production crop farming? Dole and Sebelius are acting like they know—and don't like it.

CANDY FUND CONTRIBUTIONS

Some newspaper editorials lately on lobbyists and the Missouri lobby law are enough to turn your stomach.

Everyone seems to be using the figure that "only 19 per cent of the lobbyists at the last session filed reports to comply with the law." By whose opinion were only 19 per cent of the reports correct? Did the Cole County prosecutor say this? Was this determined in court? The answer we got in checking was that "this was the consensus of the Jefferson City press corp". Now isn't it a little far out for the press to begin making rulings like this.

I admit, I'm a little sensitive on the subject, I'm registered as a lobbyist although I've never been certain I had to register. Registering is some process. You go in the chief clerk's office or the secretary of the senate's office and ask to register. They give you a mimeographed piece of paper to fill out which says you are paid to lobby. (I resent this because I'm not paid to lobby per se.) Anyway, you fill out this mimeographed form and ask if you owe them anything. They say, "No, but you can make a contribution to the candy fund.",' Well, you can be sure I make a contribution to the candy fund. Who wants to run the risk of having his form thrown out? You don't get a card or receipt to show you have registered.

At the end of the session when you file the report they do not keep a register or log. On the senate side they have two stacks of papers. One, the registrations and the other, the reports. Eventually, they are supposed to be stapled together. Anyone who comes in to look at the registrations and reports could sneak one out and no one would know. (Good way to take care of your opponents.) At least on the House side they date when the report comes in. They don't bother to do this on the Senate side.

There is nothing wrong with registering and reporting. Who the lobbyists are and who they represent should be a matter of record. The process should not be tedious and it deserves better handling than it is getting in Missouri. No lobbyist is going to slip a legislator a big chunk of money to get passage of a bill. He'll have someone else do that for him. The lobbyists will not report it and certainly the legislator won't.

Lobbyists serve an important function. Government is a lot better off with them than without them. For one thing you know which side they are on. You know why they oppose a bill and why they are for a bill. From the opposing lobbyist the legislator can get the other side and then make up his mind. Much research comes about by lobbying.

Frankly, we can't see much difference between and lobbyist and a crusading editorial writer. They're both after something and generally both believe in the cause.

Instead of berating lobbyists, the newspapers would be performing a greater service in seeking a reasonable law and calling for a little more serious handling of registrations and reports by the clerks and secretaries of the two houses.

By the way, the contribution to the candy fund is still the fee for filing under the new law.

LIKE IT IS

The director of the U.S. State Department's Office of Fuels and Energy spoke with a ring of common sense when he observed, "We must admit that there is no oil conspiracy; that there are no vast quantities of oil or gas hidden away by the oil companies to be developed tomorrow. We must admit that the energy crisis is real and potentially dangerous..., and we must refuse to listen to those who say that any solution is easy."

A small leaflet issued with customer billing by a major oil company summarizes some of the principal reasons for growing scarcity of petroleum products. In the case of gasoline, the leaflet points out that in the first six months of 1973 there was a 5 percent increase in supply over last year--ample to meet the extra demand in almost any other year in history. But the past year has been unlike any other year in history. There are millions more cars on the road than ever before--including 12 million 1973 models, which average 20 per cent fewer miles per gallon of gasoline than 1967 models--thanks to pollution control requirements set by the government. In addition, today's autos use more gasoline because they are heavier, and more people are buying power-operated options like air conditioning.

Government action required to held end petroleum shortages includes an immediate decision to build the trans-Alaska pipeline, and end to delay in offshore development of oil resources, a reappraisal of auto emission standards, elimination of barriers to building new refineries and deepwater ports and, finally, expanded research and development. The sooner the conspiracy myth is exploded, the sooner the public will give its full support of these fundamental prerequisites of meeting present and future energy requirements.

WASHINGTON--I have a book publisher friend of mine in New York named Binding who was very upset that Viking had hired Jackie Kennedy Onassis as an editor.

"If I had known she was available for $200 a week," he said, "I would have hired her. I thought she would ask for $250."

"Even if Jackie asked for $250," I said, "it still would have been a bargain."

"I'm not so sure," said Binding. "Suppose she decides to decorate her own office. You can't give Jackie Onassis a steel desk and a swivel chair. You'd have to find a Louis V desk that came out of Versailles and a chair to match. Then you would have to have a sofa from Marie Antoinette's bedroom and at least one Pissarro and one Cezanne for the walls."

"Don't forget the drapes and carpeting," I said.

"I'm afraid the Viking office manager is going to have to go to Parke-Bernet auction sales for the next six months," Binding told me.

"It's still worth it," I said. "Jackie has to be an asset to the firm. Everyone will send her their new manuscripts."

"Why?"

"Do you realize what a rejection slip from Jackie Onassis would be worth to Charles Hamilton Autographs Unlimited?"

"I never thought of that," Binding said, "but still Viking is going to have problems. Jackie really doesn't think like a publisher. I can see an agent calling up and demanding $10,000 for a first book and Jacking saying "we'll give you $50,000."

"It could happen," I agreed.

"She also doesn't know how writers operate. You have to be on their backs all the time and many authors won't even take any calls from their editors because they don't have any pages to send them. I think it's going to be a terrible blow to Jackie when she telephones her writer and he tells his wife to tell Jackie he isn't there. She's not used to people refusing her calls."

"It will be tough at first," I admitted, "but she's going to have to take rejection like everybody else in the business."

"Then," said Binding, "let's not forget the lunches. Most editors do their business over lunch and they're expected to pick up the tab. Jackie is not going to take writers to Schrafts."

"I'd love to be Jackie's writer," I said, "just so I could go to "21" for lunch every day. What kind of books do you think Viking will ask Jackie to find for them?"

"I heard her first project was going to be a travel book called 'Europe on $15,000 a Day.' " Binding said.

"It could sell," I said.

"I think another thing Jackie is going to have to face up to is that writers are very sensitive, unhappy people and they take out most of their frustrations on their editors. If the publisher doesn't advertise a book the writers scream like mad."

"You mean people are going to scream at Jackie?"

"You better believe it. I've never known a writer who didn't scream at his or her editor."

"But nobody screams at Jackie!" I said.

"They will now. And don't forget about writer's block. Every writer gets a block sooner or later and then his editor has to go see him, and unblock him."

"I wonder if Jackie knows how to unblock a writer."

"She's going to have to learn," Binding said.

"You know Binding, I think you're just jealous because Jackie didn't go with your firm."

"I suppose you're right. I think what I'll do is let her break in at Viking, and then when she gets the hang of it, I'll offer her $300 a week. It's a lot of money, but in the book business everything's a gamble."

JACK ANDERSON SAYS: An innocent hunting weekend?

with Les Whitten

WASHINGTON — Each hunting season, the Northrup Corporation invites congressional and military bigwigs to is private preserve on Maryland's scenic eastern shore for some goose shooting.

The distinguished guests usually bag at least a goose apiece. But it's Northrup that winds up with the golden goose.

Last year, for example, the company wangled a whopping $444.8 million worth of defense contracts from the Pentagon. Many of the goose hunters played a role in awarding he contracts.

Not that they would sell out the taxpayers for a goose chase. No one in the Pentagon would likely award a contract in exchange for the rustic bed, board and blinds which Northrup provides the hunters.

But the hosts know it is more effective to slap backs than to twist arms. A little booze and banter will go farther than a discourse on the company's merits.

Thus are public officials lulled until they slowly lose their sense of mission and feel a stronger loyalty to their corporate cronies.

We learned about these complimentary weekends-in-the-woods from secret Northrup memos, which specify even how many geese each participant killed.

The setting is incomparable. The goose hunting unsurpassed. Northrup also serves the hunters hearty bacon-and-egg breakfasts and pass-the-plate suppers, with plenty of liquor to take the chill off.

Between nips , the men swap stories and, according to witnesses, discuss military needs. Rep. Robert Leggett, D-Calif., for one, recalled hearing a lot of talk about defense programs.

Northrup's guest list includes more than 30 admirals and generals, among them Adm. Isaac Kidd, ex-Navy Material chief; Adm. John P. "Blackie" Weinel, former planning director for the Joint Chiefs' Gen. Clyde Box, former Deputy Air Force inspector Gen. Duwart "Pete" Crow, former Air Force Comptroller; Gen. Horace Wasde, former Vice Chief of the JCS; and Adm. Thomas McClellan, former chief of Naval Air Systems.

The guests from Capitol Hill include Sen. Howard Cannon, D-Nev.; Rep. Bill Nichols, D-Ala.; Rep. Robert L. F. Sikes, D-Fla.; ex-Rep. William Minshall, R-Ohio; Gordon Nease, then with the Senate Armed Services Committee; Earl Morgan, formerly with the House Armed Services Committee; Arthur Kuhl, Senate Foreign Relations Committee; Tom Scott, Senate Appropriations Committee; Chet Sobsey, assistant to Senator Cannon; and Len Kilgore, former Assistant to Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz.

We placed calls to all the guests whom we had been able to place at Northrup's hunting retreat. Those who returned the calls generally portrayed themselves as overworked public servants getting away from it all for a weekend. Northrup refused to comment; the Defense Department also had no comment.

Footnote: Occasionally, an important guest, unable to slip away for a weekend, got a goose anyway. Northrup delivered a goose to Senator Cannon, for example, after he missed a hunting party.

BREAST CANCER: A startling study warns that X-ray screening, which is supposed to detect breast cancer in the early stages, may actually cause cancer.

This radiation detection method, known as mammography, has been widely publicized as a life saver.But in an unpublished study, Dr. John Bailar of the prestigious National Cancer Institute writes:

"There seems to be a possibility that the routine use of mammography in screening asymptomatic women may eventually take almost as many lives as it saves."

The X-ray screening is part of a joint program which the National Cancer Intitute and American Cancer Society set up three years ago in 27 centers across the country. More than 200,000 women, all over the age of 35, are participating in the five-year project.

Preliminary figures show this early detection program has located breast cancer in 3.4 per 1,000 woomen. But Dr. Bailar's study adjusts these figures, claiming no more than 1.0 and as few as .5 detections can be attributed directly to the X-ray screening.

He contends these results may not be worth the risk involved with radiation. He suggests instead that "screening by medical history and physical examination alone will probably provide much or most of the same benefit without risk from irradiation."

But Dr. Frank Rauscher, director of the Institute, insisted there is "no question" about the effectiveness of the mammography program. He gave Dr. Bailar credit for "drawing more attentiion to the hazards involved." But both doctors stressed that only the most minimal doses of X-ray are used in the screening.

Other sources charged that prodding by the American Cancer Society and College of Radiology (whose members may profit from the X-ray fees) had moved the mammography project ahead prematurely.

Dr. Bailar's study cited a report by a committee of the Canadian Association of Radiologists. "It is not justifiable," states the report, "to recommend screening for breast cancer in Canada except in high risk groups."

Footnote: Otha Linton, a spokesman for the College of Radiology, confirmed that the college was a major backer of the program. However, he denied the profit motive and added: "Radiologists are sufficiently busy and can make a lot more money doing other kinds of exams."

Political smoke screen: Labor's national convention to pick Democratic party's '76 presidential nominee

SAN FRANCISCO — Labor's chief of chiefs, George Meany, doesn't always blow his smoke signals from his famous cigars. Meany-ologists have learned to watch him just huff and puff. Especially when he goes political.

He has, for example, turned movie producer so he could premiere his film at the national AFL-CIO convention here. He and his staff have produced a 28-minute film dubbed "The Voice of Freedom."

After an introduction by Meany, the picture features Soviet exile Nobel Laureate Alexander Solzhenitsyn and the roaring, applauding audience which first greeted him in Washington some months ago.

This is a Meany touch blending the skill of Machiavelli, Metternich, and Golda Meir. The film will be shown everywhere -- and everywhere it will be an assault on President Ford's detente foreign policy in general and Secretary of State Kissinger's in particular, with a propaganda load dumped on the ailing Secretary Brezhnev, too. Thus the movie will be Meany's national surrogate throughout the coming presidential campaign. Effective, too.

On domestic issues, Meany and virtually all his colleagues will need no surrogates. They'll be out on the campaign hustings reflecting Meany's words -- "Ford is a nice guy, a likeable guy, a very, very straight truthful guy. There's nothing tricky about him. And, on a personal basis, it's pretty hard to come to dislike him."

But the key words are the first words in that comment. As a "nice guy" Jerry Ford should finish last next year. That's about as subtle as a Playboy centerfold.

But if not Ford, who? Where are the signals? It's later than most think. This is the very minute for planning slates for the 33 presidential preference primaries. So what are the thousands of delegates and alternates thinking? They are the most representative cross-section of America's 20 million unionists and their families. Quite a bloc of voters.

Well, the signal can be seen in AFL-CIO Industrial Union Department resolutions spread around here. One such was passed at the IUD's recent pre-convention convention. It says: "The 1976 elections will determine whether the nation will be governed by a President who cares about the workers..or by one who will continue to turn his back on worker concerns."

These are the words of I.W. (Abe) Abel, United Steelworkers of America president, who was Meany's belabored spokesman at the whistling, howling, hooting 1972 McGovern nominating convention in Miami.

But you can't beat a racing Ford with no horse -- to mangle a phrase. What are Meany's signals for an acceptable Democratic candidate? Some insiders say just look at the speakers' schedule at this eleventh AFL-CIO constitutional convention. It's not just the fact that four Democratic Senators have been invited -- and the Shapps, Shrivers and Muskies ignored.

Note the order:

On Monday morning Oct. 6 the sessions will hear Scoop Jackson and Hubert Humphrey. In the afternoon -- Birch Bayh and Lloyd Bentsen. Could be a coincidence. But coincidences are about as frequent in Meany's strategy as congratulatory telegrams to Dick Nixon.

So political insiders say pick one from column A and one from column B. It will be either Scoop or Hubie for president and the other two can fight it out for second place. There had been some talk of New York's Gov. Carey. But for some reason he has turned off a lot of powerful labor leaders.

There's another signal, this time not from Meany but from the rarely wrong political prophet, the hatters union's Alex Rose. His New York balance-of-power Liberal party rarely has held a pre-election banquet without the next President on its dais as guest speakers.

Back in 1963 Rose featured Lyndon Johnson. Bobby Kennedy promptly ordered Larry O'Brien and Kennie O'Donnell to bar Rose from the White House. So Bobby told me when he got mad at the hatter and referred to him as "that son of a bitch."

Well, in New York City this Oct. 9 Rose's banquet features Scoop Jackson. And Democratic National Committee chairman Robert Strauss will be sitting up there right beside him.

Among the national labor leaders I've polled there appears no doubt that the final struggle will be between Scoop and Hubert. As for the vice-presidential nomination, the struggle will be between the forces who want to appeal to the New Politics McGovern-Kennedy group through Birch Bayh, and those who say -- offset Gov. Wallace's huge bloc with a more conservative candidate than Bayh, meaning Bentsen.

So the 20th anniversary AFL-CIO convention will be geared to launch a purge-Ford drive.At the same time, Meany is streamlining the AFL-CIO's high command for the fight by retiring five old emeriti from the executive council. There will be new young blood to pour into the '76 campaign along with the middle-aged sophisticates who have proven they can make or break Presidents and even governors and mayors.

CIRCUIT COURT

BENTON — A $10,000 Personal Injury and damage suit was filed Wednesday in Scott County Circuit Court by Chris Hoffman against Madene Coplen Shield.

The suit stems from a May 6, 1973, automobile accident and states that a vehicle operated by Hoffman had stopped waiting to make a left turn from East Malone Avenue into the Midtowner Village Shopping Center in Sikeston when a car operated by the Shields woman was driven carelessly into the back of his vehicle.

As a result of the accident, Hoffman states that he has sustained permanent and disabling injuries to his head, neck, shoulders, back and nerves.

The suit states that, as a result of the injuries, Hoffman's earning capacity has been permanently damaged and that he has had and will continue to require medical attention and medicine for his injuries at great expense.

Nursing Home Patients Studied

SOUTHPORT, Conn. (AP) — The federal Medicaid program tends to extend patients' stays in skilled nursing homes and may keep them there longer than necessary, a study shows.

Edith S. Baum says the program provides more aid for nursing home care than for less intensive intermediate care and home care, such as visiting nurses.

As a result, Medicaid patients are less able to afford more suitable care than non-Medicaid patients, her study shows.

The 150-page study was Mrs. Baum's thesis for her master's degree in public health at the Yale University School of Medicine.

"The extended length of stay of the Medicaid patient is not only more costly in terms of federal and state reimbursement but is also psychologically debilitating to patients," her study says.

Mrs. Baum collected data on 16 long-term care facilities in the Greater Bridgeport area. The study was based on 440 patients discharged in 1973. It compared Medicaid and non-Medicaid patients and showed that the average Medicaid patient stayed five times as long in nursing homes, although they were no more seriously ill on admission than non-Medicaid patients.

She recommends that alternatives to institutionalization such as home care, day care, day hospitals and meals on wheels be set up and that more reimbursement for intermediate and home care be made.

"Good grief!" Charlie Brown is getting old

SANTA ROSA, Calif. (AP) — Charlie Brown's short pants, polo shirt and painfully shy demeanor belie the fact that one of America's most beloved comic strip characters is 25 years old today.

"Good grief!" might be the perennial loser's only comment. His creator, Charles M. Schulz, admits, "The poor kid has been subjected to a lot."

Good ole Charlie Brown and his pint-sized pals — including his philsophical dog, Snoopy — first appeared in a comic strip drawn Oct. 2, 1950, by Schulz. The cartoonist, now a 52-year-old multimillionaire, still huddles over his drawing board daily to chart the adventures of the "Peanuts" gang.

"I think the strip has changed considerably," Sculz said in an interview. "The big turning point was when Snoopy began to think and he started to live on top of the doghouse. The first time he got up on the doghouse, he fell off and said, 'Life is a rude awakening.' It just seemed funny to keep him on top of the doghouse."

Snoopy's wry observations and such sayings by Peanuts' characters as "Happiness is a warm puppy," "Curse you, Red Baron" and "How can we lose when we're so sincere?" have been emblazoned on shirts, greeting cards, toys and other lucrative spinoffs.

As Schulz' style loosened up, he added to the strip such characters as a talking school building, a tiny bird named Woodstock, and Spike, Snoopy's moustachioed brother who lived with the coyotes.

"I have a common sense approach that keeps the strip within the realm of plausibility. It's never overly intellectual or sophisticated," Schulz said.

He said he purposely lets his characters call each other names such as "blockhead" and "fuss budget."

"I think they demonstrate that life is quite a struggle out there on the playground. Adults have a tendency to forget how risky it is out there," said Schulz, who has five children from his first marriage.

Schulz was an instructor at the Art Instruction School in his hometown of Minneapolis when he tarted the United Features Syndicate comic strip. It now appears in 1,655 papers. He still draws the strip with a fountain pen he obtained during his days as an art student.

He earned $90 during the first month following syndication of "Peanuts." By 1966 the strip brought him a yearly income estimated at $300,000. Gross income from such Peanuts spinoffs as toys, wearing apparel, books and televison shows was $150 million in 1971. His office refused to release current income figures.

Ann Landers

Boss frolics while secretary stews

Dear Ann Landers: What can a secretary do about a boss in his 50s who is making a jackass out of himself? He is chasing around with some young idiot who works in this office and everyone is laughing at him behind his back.

These two fools have picnic lunches in parks which are public, yet they think nobody sees them. They ride around together during office hours (he also drives her home) and they act like the whole world is blind, deaf and dumb.

Last Thursday he told me he was taking off from noon till 4:00 p.m. to call on an account in a neighboring state. The idiot went with him. When his wife phoned ten minutes later, I felt like a traitor because I didn't tell her the truth.

Should I face up to my Christian duty and tell him to shape up? Or should I keep my mouth shut? -- Secretary To A Nut

Dear Sec: Who anointed you, anyway? Since when is it your Christian duty to tell anyone to shape up? MYOB, Lady. If your boss persists in behaving like a jackass, he'll pay the price. There's no such thing in this life as a free lunch.

Dear Ann Landers: My problem is sort of selfish. Please don't think I'm a rotten kid but I need someone to help me think this through.

Two months ago Dad died of cancer. He and Mom had a great marriage. There are two kids in our family besides me (I'm 15). The youngest is a boy, nine. Mom is 38 but she looks very good for her age.

Last night my kid brother asked Mom if she would ever marry again. At first she seemed sad, then said, "You might think this sounds strange but I would like to marry again because I had such a good life with your father. I'd hate to live the rest of my days alone. It would be sort of a put-down to him."

My brother started to cry and said, "Gee, Mom, how could you ever let another man take Dad's place?"

I'm ashamed to admit I felt the same way. If we are wrong will you say something to straighten us out? Thanks, Ann. -- We Miss Him Awfully

Dear Miss Him: Two months isn't very long. The wounds are still fresh. But they will heal. And as time goes on you children will want your mother to have a full life. For a woman who has had a happy marriage, it usually means another marriage.

No one will ever be able to take you dad's place, but surely you would be pleased if a kind, considerate man came along and could fill the lonely void in your mother's life. Save this column and read it again one year from now.

Dear Ann Landers: Please tell those cheapies who squeeze a nickel so hard the buffalo gets a headache there's a new day a-dawnin'. The U.S. postal authorities have finally put an end to their sweet little racket. No more dropping letters unstamped into mail boxes and sticking the guy at the other end.

As one who has worked for a gas and light company for several years, I can tell you we were stuck plenty at the end of every month because people knew we'd pay the postage due on their checks if we had to. So they never bothered to put on a stamp.

I hope this news reaches all who haven't as yet caught on and are still playing those cheap little games. -- Last Laugh Lulu

Dear L.L.' I'm right with you, Sister. Our office used to get stuck for two-pound manuscripts, 20-page letters -- just name it and we paid the postage. But no more. Anything that isn't properly stamped ends up in the dead letter office.

How to -- and how much? Find out with Ann Landers's new booklet, "How, What, and When to Tell Your Child About Sex." For your copy, send 50 cents in coin along with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Ann Landers, P.O. Bo 1400, Elgin, Illinois, 60120.

Fall's small touches

You don't have to spend a fortune to put yourself into this fall's fashion picture. Little touches added here and there can do the trick admirably. Since this fall's big fashion message boils down to two basic silhouettes, one a soft, generously proportioned look, the other a leaner, close-to-the-body look, here's some advice to help you sort out what goes best with each silhouette.

When you're pulling together a "big" look, concentrate on one really super accessory instead of piling on several small ones which have a tendency to be overpowered by bulky clothes. If you love caps, you might try a brow-brushing knit one with oversized ribby or cable trim. Or you might wrap your neck with a big soft scarf. If you're looking for a new shoe shape, slip into a sleek flat-heeled type or one on a low wedge If you're in the market for a new pair of boots, look for a wide, straight-legged type in soft crushy leather. A good addition at the waist is a wide cinch belt.

On days when you are into the new lean silhouette, think of adding sleek, simple things and do not be afraid to add a couple of chains, a scarf and a chain, a cap and a scarf. You can be a bit more generous here than when you are working with a "big" look. Just remember to pick things that are in the same lean mood as the clothes. If you like a knit cap, pick a head-hugging classic one or try a soft beret. Pick skinny-chained neck pendants, sleek little pouch bags worn two by two, or a handsome envelope shoulder bag. Even your watch will look terrific if it has slender, neat lines. Shoes follow suit ... in refined, lower-heeled shapes, such as T-straps and classic-styled pumps.

Whether your look is big or lean, casual or dressy, accessories are all part of the total fashion picture for versatile fall dressing.

JEWELRY

Pick handsome pieces and wear them sparingly. Shine is important. Eastern and Oriental influences are coming on strong. Look for amulets dangling from a skinny chain. Bangles, in natural looks like wood or bone, interspersed with the shine of metal. Wider, heavier cuff-bracelets worn one to a wrist -- many carved or handpainted. There's a renewed interest in chokers and sleek strands of beads.

GLOVES

The newest are soft knit finger-warmers that go all the way up to the elbow. They can be worn crushed down at the wrist or turned down into cuffs. Gloves are found in a wide range of textures -- thick, bulky knits, smooth knits, knits with fuzzy surface interest, smooth leathers or suedes with warm linings, leather-and-knit combinations. In solids touched with rabbit's hair, in stripes, in delightful folkloric patterns, many which are Mexican or Peruvian-inspired.

BELTS

Look for wide ones made to cinch or wrap and tie. Narrow, neat ones to sliver through belt loops. They are in sleek rigid leather, soft crushy leather, or elastic-and-leather combinations. Try leather and hemp for early fall days. Leather -- braided, basket-woven or combined with suede for late ron. Buckles take on new importance this season. Many are shiny and as well-designed as pieces of jewelry.

BAGS

There will be a continuation of oversized totes, particularly horizontals and chunky clutches in smooth and sueded leathers. You'll find skinny envelope shoulder bags and little double pouch bags worn over the shoulder to carry change. Look for the big soft pouch in leather; in canvas, with our without leather trim; in quilted or plaided fabric. The classic safari– in canvas and leather, and sueded leather. Those with a longer shoulder strap can be crossed over the body, schoolbag-style.

BOOTS AND SHOES

The important fall look for skirts and dresses is the soft, straight-legged classic crush boot. The "Fyre" type boot continues to be a favorite to team with rolled up jeans and heavier knitted outerwear. There's also a wealth of crepe-bottomed boots for pant and jeans -- as well as ski boots, hiking boots and two-toned sports boots.

Lower-heeled shoes and little flats make a fashion comeback. Wedges continue their popularity for casual occasions -- in slip-ons, moccasin variations, and styles with ties and strap-fastenings. Also in ghillies on dress-wedges. T-straps, one-straps, sling-backs and moccasins on stacked heels are everywhere.

SCARVES, MUFFLERS AND SHAWLS

Scarves are fall's big fashion accessory ... in a variety of sizes, wraps and ties. In everything from challis to silky fabrics. Mufflers are terrific, too -- to sling around the neckline and knot, tie, or let fall free and fringed. Wear heavy knit scarves or mufflers in multiples for an interesting play on textures. There is more big news in shawls. Knitted or woven, fringed or not. Wear them folded, as a triangle. Top them over a dress, a jacket, a sweater, even a coat!

CAPS AND HATS

The knit story is still going strong with lots of little head-hugging caps in lots of weights and textures from thick and rustic to downy-soft and touched with angora or mohair. Look for the ribbed or plain-stitched, cuffed or uncuffed. As for hats, they couldn't be more varied. There is the basic tennis shape in tweed, the soft felt beret, the newsboy cap in menswear fabric and the slouch hat ... in all the great fall shades of felt.

"HEALTH TIPS"

The familiar glass thermometer may soon be obsolete. A New York firm has announced plans to market an easy-to-read, disposable thermometer that can take a patient's temperature in ten seconds and costs less than a dime. Placed in the mouth, the thermometer shows a progression of melted dots until the patient's temperature is reached.

Washington report

Fiscal responsibility among top priorities

By SEN. STUART SYMINGTON

WASHINGTON, D.C.–Today, our growing federal deficit poses a grave threat to our nation's economic security.

If we are to reduce this massive deficit and restore order to the national economy, it is essential that all areas of government exercise budgetary restraint when determining the relative priorities of the programs American tax dollars support.

In an effort to hold the line on government spending, the House-Senate Conference Committee on Military Procurement Authorization reduced the Administration's budget request for fiscal year 1976 by approximately $3 billion—a 10.7 per cent reduction.

Recently, I served as chairman of a House-Senate conference committee responsible for authorizing funds for military construction projects. By eliminating several questionable projects, such as a new $70 million Defense Intelligence Agency headquarters building, the conference reduced the Defense Department's overall military construction request for fiscal 1976 and the three-month transition period by 8.3 per cent, approving a bill totaling $3.8 billion--an amount which will adequately provide for the construction needs of our military services.

The authorization bill contained $4.9 million for Ft. Leonard Wood, Mo., where the Army is planning to consolidate all of its engineering programs.

However, our military's budget is but one area that cries for fiscal restraint. By eliminating unnecessary expenditures in all areas of government and reducing or holding the line as much as possible on federal spending, we will do much to put the United States on the road to financial integrity.

I recently joined 59 of my Senate colleagues in cosponsoring a Senate resolution giving the Senate Select Committee on Small Business authority to review and report on all legislation involving the Small Business Administration. Similar authority has been given to the Small Business Committee in the House.

At this time, the select committee only has power to conduct investigations and make recommendations to the SBA. Legislative proposals affecting small business are presently handled through tax, banking and labor legislation.

I believe that by consolidating legislative authority under one separate committee, we will be able to deal more effectively with the problems of the small businessman.

Hess still behind bars

BERLIN (AP) — Rudolf Hess, deputy fuehrer to Adolph Hitler during the Nazi era, is 81 years old and still behind bars.

Hess, the only Nazi war criminal in Spandau Prison for the past nine years, celebrated his birthday Tuesday. He was described as healthy by a British spokesman.

The British guarded Hess during September as part of the monthly rotation of American, French, Russian and British troops. The Americans, British and French have asked for Hess' release, but the Russians have refused to agree.

When announcing the selection, Doug Russell, state director for the Bicentennial contests, said, "Due to the cooperation and assistance of our school district coordinators, it is possible for the American Revolution Bicentennial Commission of Missouri to provide the young people of the school districts with an opportunity to become involved in the celebration commemorating our great nation's 200th birthday.

"The R-1 School District in Scott City, the R-5 School District in Morley, the R-6 School District in Sikeston, the R-3 School; District in Oran and the R-2 School District in Chaffee are commended for the interst they have displayed in the Bicentennial celebration."

Letters TO THE EDITOR

Bolen's
Rt. 3, Sikeston, Mo.
September 29, 1975
To whom it may concern,

I have enclosed a story my Dad wrote a while back. He's no writer or anything like that. That's why it was so ironic for him to write this. He's a wonderful father and all of this story came straight from the heart. I liked the story so much, I thought you might be able to use it somewhere in your paper. If not, please return it with my thanks for reading it anyway.

Sincerely,
Connie Bolen

I would like to tell you a story about a thought I had the other day. This might seem kinda strange, but anyway; as I was thinking about various things, my mind wandered back to when I was a boy. Back when I lived on a farm down in southeast Missouri.

I remembered when we used to farm with mules. But most of all, I remembered my Daddy when he'd take a young mule and harness him up for the very first time; how he'd look kinda awkward; how full of life he would be. How high he would step, yet very nervous & tense & uncertain he was. I would be kinda worried about what he would do, yet I knew if he had been trained at an early age, there was a good chance he would be okay.

Then came the time when you would hook him up to the wagon. Then when he'd feel the load behind him, he would begin to struggle & sometime kick out of the harness. But my Daddy was a good hand at this business so he would begin to talk kind to him & try to reassure him that everything would be all right. But sometimes it wouldn't work. Then he would have to scold him a little. Sometimes that would fail and he might have to whip him before he would settle down. Then when he had done all he could do, although he was afraid of what might happen, he would give him the reins & let him run until he would be all worn out. Daddy knew there was a chance he might kill himself or be hurt very bad and maybe be scarred up for the rest of his life. Most ofthe time, when it was all over, you could put him back under the load & he'd do pretty good.

Then as I think along this line, I think of how very much the human-being is like the little ole mule.

From the first day of life you feed, care for 'em, protect 'em; & try to teach 'em the things they need to know. Then comes the time when they're out of school & ready to take on other responsibilities. Then like that little ole mule, they begin to feel insecure, nervous & unsettled. You begin to talk and try to persuade. If this fails, you scold or maybe even punish to a greater extent. Then when you feel you have done your best and there is nothing more you can do, you just give them the reins & let 'em run. If you have done your best, you can be pretty sure everything will be okay.

Sometimes they meet with disaster. Sometimes they bear the scars for the rest of their life & sometimes they just run 'til they're all out of wind & give up. Then they're ready to shoulder the load & go forward.

But I remember one ole mule that never could seem to get settled for very long. Although he was old, sometimes he would balk, then, he would go pretty good for a while. Then he would kick out of the harness & run off.

You know, there are some ole folks just like that old mule; they never can seem to bear the load of growing up; the load of stepping out & staring life straight in the face. The load of taking a wife & raising the children, teaching them & setting their feet in the right direction. 'Seems like they just keep kicking out of the harness & running off; leaving no one to carry the load.

Then I have another thought; I think about our country, the U.S.A.; once a great nation filled with a God fearing people with the very laws of our land based on God's own word. But now I see it begin to weaken because we the people, have kicked out of the traces & left the load behind. I see the scars we have encountered down through the years.

We have buried the youth of the land on foreign soil. Our land has been beat & battered by the raging storm & torn apart but the earthquakes that swallow our people like a mighty giant.

Now some folks say we're looking pretty good. But when I look, I see a nation that is internally sick. I see an unsettled people; I see moral decay. I see the youth of our nation kick out of the traces & run. Then I see the scars they have to bear. But worst of all, ole folks like that old mule, that just couldn't stay hitched.

I see a nation filled with murder, crime of every kind, sex-crazy people & drugs that dim our minds. Still, they say we're doing pretty good. But I see a confusion & struggle within the very ranks of government which I believe was set up & based on God's word; to run with peace & harmony. I see the eyes of this entire nation looking on, feeling very nervous & insecure.

Yes, I see many scars on this great nation because we have failed to carry the load so many times. Some day God will give us the reins & let us run; perhaps to the bitter end.

If you don't believe this, maybe you should go out to that farm & take a look at that ole mule. No matter who you are or wherever you may be, take a look around & tell me what you see.

Three Eye . . .

Among the many responses you will undoubtedly receive in regards to the new Sunday edition for our fair city, let me add my sincere congratulations and best wishes. I have long thought Sikeston deserved a Sunday publication, and apparently your thinking coincided with mine in that respect.

Your first issue was far above the norm in all categories, ie. news content, pictures, advertising, and (the area in which I am most concerned) the physical makeup of each page. Am proud to again be a citizen of Sikeston, and also proud to boast a Sunday newspaper in our town.

Again, best wishes on this new venture.

A Bicentennial quiz to take

How's your American history? Here's a test to put you in tune with the Bicentennial. The questions have to do with circumstances and events attending the nation's founding 200 years ago.

Copley News Service

(A) Which two nations in addition to France sided with the Americans against the British in the Revolution?

(B) What was John Adams referring to when, while attending the First Continental Congress in Philadelphia in October, 1774, he wrote to his wife with news of "a peculiar kind of musket?"

(C) Gen. John Burgoyne surrendered at Saratoga on condition that his 6,000 troops were sent back to England, not to fight again. Gen. Horatio Gates agreed, but Congress later refused to honor this part of the agreement. What happened to the troops?

(D) How many patriots signed the Declaration of Independence?

(E) Which of the signers has an unknown grave?

(A) France declared war on Britain in 1778, Spain a year later, and The Netherlands in 1780. France gave crucial aid. The others helped indirectly by drawing off British military power in other parts of the world.

(B) The Kentucky rifle. Rifling had been practiced in Europe as early as 1500, but the new American version produced by immigrant German and Swiss gunsmiths had an accuracy unknown before.

(C) They were marched down to Virginia and held as prisoners until the end of the war.

(D) Fifty-six.

(E) Thomas Lynch Jr. of South Carolina. In poor health as a result of swamp fever contracted in the Army in 1775, he embarked with his wife in 1779 for the West Indies seeking a cure. The vessel in which they sailed was lost at sea.

Mental health has largest state payroll

JEFFERSON CITY — The Missouri Department of Mental Health has the largest payroll of the 14 state government departments, with 11,600 full-time employes and payroll expeditures of $72 million per year.

The department of Social Services runs a close second with 10,300 workers and Highway Department ranks third with 6,696.

By contrast, McDonnell Douglas Corp., one of Missouri's largest private companies, employs 30,000 persons.

The Department of Higher Education has the largest capital investments of any state department because of its campus complexes but only 65 persons are on the central office payroll. Professors and other campus personnel are employed directly by their respective schools.

The mental health department operates 22 major facilities such as state hospitals and mental health centers.

"When you get 10,000 employes in 23 locations including the central office with such a multiplicity of services, it gets big," says Dave Roberts, deputy director of administration. "It's a whole bunch of small things that have to be held together.

The number of counseling services the department offers contributes to its vastness, administrators say.

"Not only do we have the largest department structurally, but the greatest responsibility in the number of survices offered to people," says Dr. Duane Hensley, director for the Division of Mental Retardation — Developmental Disabilities.

Hensley says Missouri statutes give the department wider responsibilities than other service-oriented state agencies, enabling it to offer a wide range of programs.

Besides institutional mental health care, the department offers alcohol and drug counseling, vocational rehabilitation programs and therapy for the developmentally disabled, such as cerebral palsy patients.

The operating budget for the last fiscal year was $98 million. Budget funds appropriated for this fiscal year are $105 million.

"Most of the expenditure is major repairs to the buildings," says Roberts. "You've got general physical plant problems because many of the buildings are so old."

Fulton State Hospital, the first state hospital west of the Mississippi, has buildings which were constructed before the Civil War, Roberts says.

Capital improvement expenses for the department amounted to $8 million in the last fiscal year.

"It's like a large private enterprise with all the bureaucratic paperwork," says Roberts, nodding to a tall stack of forms on his desk. "That's what you get when you get big."

What's the law?

The case of the intimidated spouse

By JACK STRAUSS, LL.B.

Joe was by nature a very gentle, kind and considerate individual. Overworked, however, and confronted by severe financial reverses, his entire disposition suddenly and completely reversed itself to the point that he was closer to the edge than Columbus had ever been with his three ships. And it was his wife Brenda who caught the brunt of it.

Not only did Joe become dictitorial, he became highly critical and jealous of his wife and accused her of having affairs with everyone from the butcher, the baker and the candlestick maker. Finally, unable to take the pressure any longer, Brenda sued Joe to end their marriage.

"My husband's jealousy is driving me batty," she complained in court. "Just the other night, for example, we went to a party and when he heard me mention Michael Angelo, he promptly accused me of having an affair with BOTH of them."

"How was I expected to know who Michael Angelo was," responded Joe. "Lately, I've been having enough trouble trying to remember who I am. Under the circumstances, my wife should not be allowed to walk out on me. It would be like leaving a sinking ship."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you free Brenda from her harried husband?

This is how the judge ruled: NO! The judge held that when a person is suffering from a mental illness, he is not accountable for his actions. Divorces, noted the judge, are granted because of the fault of a person and not from his misfortunes.

Diet important for angina victims

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I read a column by you recently about the man who recovered from angina pectoris. You ignored completely a very important fact, that the man discarded the use of nitroglycerin pills and by using "Questran" he cured his angina pectoris and became a completely rejuvenated 100 per cent new man. Why?

A lot of angina pectoris victims will marvel at this writer's playing tennis, bicycle riding, etc. at age 71 without any more heart attacks.

Why don't all doctors recommend Questran instead of nitroglycerin pills?

DEAR READER — No, I didn't ignore it, I just ran out of space. The man wrote primarily about the role of a low-fat, low-saturated-fat diet and the value of polyunsaturated fat.

Questran is a useful medicine in many patients. It acts by combining with bile salts in the intestine. This increases the elimination of bile salts through the bowel.

Thoughts

From The Living Bible

What is faith? It is the confident assurance that something we want is going to happen. It is the certainty that what we hope for is waiting for us, even though we cannot see it up ahead. Men of God in days of old were famous for their faith. By faith — by believing in God — we know that the world and the stars — in fact, all things — were made at God's command; and that they were all made from things that can't be seen.

Joan Fontaine busy and feeling no guilt

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Oscar winner Joan Fontaine, working in Hollywood for the first time in 15 years, says, "I'm busier than I have ever been in my life.

"I'm doing exactly what I want to do, with no one to be responsible to. The best part of my life alone is that I no longer need to feel guilty.

"Before, I had pangs of guilt because I was devoting time to my career. I always had to consider the feelings of my children or a stray husband — and I use the adjective advisedly.

"People sometimes ask me if I'm lonely. Ridiculous! These are the best years I've known."

Miss Fontaine (Best actress, "Suspicion," 1941) returned to Hollywood for a two-hour movie appropriately titled "The Star." It will be a special show for the CBS series "Cannon," with Miss Fontaine as a film actress who hires William Conrad to find her errant son.

She has had four husbands. The years (57) have left her blonde beauty intact. If anything, her tongue is sharper than ever.

Heading for a Fall--in High Fashion

WHEN IT'S OFF TO SCHOOL in brisk weather, a girl can be warm—and know she looks fetching—in new clothes that also are easy for her Mom to take care of. At left is a zip suit. Sprinkled with bright hearts and flowers, the waist-hugging, outdoor jacket is worn over a turtleneck and swingy A-line skirt. Center, slacks and sneakers are worn with an "educational" hooded sweatshirt, with moon appliqué and the word Night inverted for reading by the wearer. Right, the pants suit in tartan plaid has a short-sleeved jacket to be worn over a long-sleeved sweater or shirt on nippy days. It also has its own matching fringed scarf. (Zip suit by Aileen Girl of acrylic and polyester; slacks and sweatshirt by Ruth Scharf of wear-dated acrilan; plaid suit by Russie of acrylic.)

Task force tours prison

MAPPS corrections task force completes work on standards, goals

JEFFERSON CITY — The corrections task force of the Missouri Action Plan for Public Safety is the first criminal justice task force to complete its work on Missouri's standards and goals. The corrections task force met on July 29, Aug. 28 and Sept. 16 to develop specific plans of action for improving state and local correctional systems in Missouri.

Corrections staff advisor Pat Rackers of the Missouri Council on Criminal Justice said, "The task force members exhibited substantial enthusiasm throughout the standards and goals setting process. We are now looking forward to participation in the public hearings to give citizens an opportunity to comment and make additional recommendations so the program can become as workable as possible."

The task force adopted three goals and six standards:

The first goal is to provide viable alternatives to incarceration on a statewide basis through the use of three standards, proving misdemeanant probation services in all areas of the state, providing sufficient probation and parole officers to reduce caseloads to no more than an average of 50 clients and providing diversion and pretrial release services in all areas of the state.

Goal two is to successfully reintegrate offenders back into their communities by incorporating two standards, development of a statewide comprehensive correctional plan and development and enforcement of minimum standards for all correctional facilities and services in Missouri.

The third goal is to assure fairness and equity to the accused, to the offender and to the ex-offender through a standard elimination of all provisions, statutory and administrative, which place restrictions on ex-offenders in areas of employment, licensing and civil rights.

To arrive at these standards and goals, task force members were in contact with public and private agencies and other organizations involved in the corrections area. On Aug. 28, the task force was given a tour of the Missouri Penitentiary for Men in Jefferson City.

The recommendations of the corrections task force, if accepted, will involve action by the Missouri board of Probation and Parole, the General Assembly, the Supreme Court and the Department of Social Services.

Rackers added that while several of the recommendations will involve additional funding for correctional agencies in Missouri, a number of them may require enabling legislation or repeal of existing statutes.

Task forces in police, courts, juvenile delinquency, community crime prevention and criminal justice information systems were scheduled to finish their work by the end of September. As the standards and goals are finalized by all task forces, preparations are being made for the public hearings phase of the MAPPS project. The hearings are set to begin around the middle of October.

More state senators using newsletters making record high postal bill

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — More Missouri state senators are using newsletters to keep in touch with their constituents, and the result will apparently be a record high Senate postal bill for 1975.

"Another 18 grand before the end of the year wouldn't surprise me," said Ron Kirchoff, the director of the Senate's printing and mailing.

Another $18,000 on top of the $38,499 spent in postage during the first nine months of this year would put the Senate's 34 members well ahead of their spending pace of previous years.

The Senate postage bill for the two-year period ending in December, 1974 was $87,577.

Each senator is authorized $2,500 per year to send mail to his constituents. The allotment is broken into amounts of $275 per month from January through August, and $75 per month for the rest of the year.

"There has been an increase in the number of senators sending newsletters, and those who had been sending them are mailing more," Kirchoff said.

He estimated that about 16 Senate members used newsletter mailings last year, and that he expected 21 would do so before the end of 1975.

According to figures released by Kirchoff's office, three senators are already near their $2,500 spending limitation.

Cassville Republican Emory Melton had spent the most, $2,434, followed by Kansas City Democrat Donald Manford's $2,420 and Sen. Richard Webster, R-Carthage, wih $2,288.

Kirchoff said senators who had overspent their monthly amounts would either reimburse the state, or would not send out any mailings the following month. He said Webster had given him a check for $232 to make up for overspent postage.

Others above the $2,000 mark were Sen. Frank Bild, R-St. Louis, with $2,096 and Sen. Nelson Tinnin, D-Hornersville, with $2,087.

All of those senators send out newsletters.

The increased use of newsletters has not only cost more in postage, but also in the salaries of Kirchoff and his four assistants who print and send them out.

The Senate Accounts Committee, on the advice of Sen. Lawrence Lee, D-St. Louis, recently gave Kirchoff a 12 per cent salary increase frm $17,700 to $20,000 a year. His four employes also received pay raises.

Lee told the committee that the Senate was in danger of losing Kirchoff without the salary increase.

"The American Farmer not only raises crops — he raises the overall standard of living of all Americans.".

Ford said the farmer should not be blamed for rising food prices, even though they he often is.

Contrary to the finger-pointing at the farmer, Ford said food prices held steady last month.

Noting that the inflation rate has dropped substantially over the last year, Ford said, "The good news of one month does not mean that the battle against inflation has been won," adding that victory over inflation will not be achieved at the expense of the nation's farmers.

"I'm here to tell you that your crops will be sold and at fair prices," the President said.

Ford defended the current embargo of further exports of grain to Russia and Poland by saying an effort must be made to stablize the sales.

He said the United States is seeking to fix minimum grain purchases by the Soviet Union over a five-year period, the grain selling at the going market price.

"Most importantly, these agreements will be in the long term best interests of the farmer and the consumer," Ford said.

Under questioning later from the floor, Ford said he is optimistic about a negotiated grain deal with Russia in the near future, but he declined to say when the deal might be completed.

Turning to the energy crisis, Ford continued to chide the Congress.

"The Congress is merely postponing hard choices that must be made, and is attempting to blame high fuel prices on everyone but themselves," said the President.

$101,000 suit filed for damages in accident case

BENTON----A $101,000 damage suit was filed Tuesday in Scott County Circuit Court by L.E. Bechtold and his wife, Alma Lee Bechtold, against David Lee Bailey, Hurley Laster and Goldie Ruth Laster in connection with an automobile accident on Highway 62 in Scott county on Oct. 8, 1970.

The suit charges that Bailey drove and operated an automobile as an agent, servant and employe of Hurley and Goldie Ruth Laster, which he carelessly allowed to collide with an auto driven by Bechtold.

As a result of the accident, Bechtold received injuries to his neck, spine, back and suffered injury to the nerves of the heart, resulting in an improper functioning of the heart, and suffered severe shock to his entire nervous system which resulted in permanent damage.

The suit states that Bechtold has lost wages and will continue to lose wages as a result of the negligence and carelessness of Bailey.

Count one of the suit asks for actual damages in the amount of $75,000.

In count two, Mrs. Bechtold seeks $25,000 stating that her husband has been unable and will continued to be unable to perform his normal work and to earn a living or to perform his husbandly duties, thereby depriving her of the services, association and companionship of her husband.

In count three, Mrs. Bechtold asks judgment in the amount of $1,000 for damage to her automobile.

"ALCOHOL IS A DRUG"

Alcohol is the number one drug problem among young people and teenagers in the U.S. today. In Missouri there are 180,000 alcoholics.

The city council has passed an ordinance No. 3605 which allows any retail business to purchase a license to sell 5% beer. This removes all control on the sale of 5% beer. (5% beer is considered hard liquor)

There will be a Public Hearing, Monday October 6th at the Sikeston City Administration Building. Everyone should attend this meeting.

Help prevent alcoholism among Sikeston teenagers. Call your city councilmen and ask them to repeal this ordinance.

Mike Moss runs wild

Star running back Mike Moss of the Poplar Bluff Mules has dominated the Northern Division rushing and scoring statistics after the first four weeks of the high school football season, according to figures compiled by the Daily Standard with the aid of the conference's coaches.

After four games, Moss is already well on the way to the coveted 1,000 mark in rushing yardage. The speedy senior has gained 708 yards in 54 carries for an average of 13.1 yards a whack. Moss also leads the division and the conference in scoring. His three touchdowns against Perryville has given him a total of ten for the season and 62 total points. Jackson's Rob Goodwin has 58 points.

Sikeston's Ron Priday is the Northern Division's leading passer. Priday's percentage is not impressive, 13 out of 31 throws, but his tosses have been good for 227 yards and two touchdowns. Poplar Bluff signal caller Tracy Edington is tops in completion percentage (14 of 27) and is second in yards (193).

The Bulldogs' tall and talented tight end, Paul Gilbow, tops the Northern circuit in receptions with 11 and receiving yardage with 214. Jeff Jones of Poplar Bluff has seven catches but only 112 yards.

Cape Central's Eric Lee is the North's leading punter, averaging 39.3 yards per kick after 16 punts.

In the Southern Division, Caruthersville's Audie Tarpley and East Prairie's Grady Williford are waging a spirited battle for the passing lead. Tarpley has the lead in completions (27-16) and in yardage (322-274), but Williford holds a slight edge in percentage (66 per cent to 60 per cent).

The Eagles' all-state receiver Richard Thurmond is way ahead of everyone else in the pass-catching department, Thurmond has already caught 15 aerials for 281 yards and three touchdowns. Caruthersville's Keith Kimbrell has caught ten for 115 yards and two TD's.

Danny Johnson of East Prairie is the South's rushing leader with 385 yards and an 8.0 average gain. Teammate Benny Bradley has gained 322 yards and has an impressive 12.9 average.

Perry Jones of East Prairie is the leading punter in the Southern Division. He has kicked only five times, but carrier a hefty 41-2. yard-per-kick average.

Bradley and Jones are tied for the division scoring lead with 24 points each.

Illmo-Scott City's Steve Hanschen is walking away the offensive honors in the Bootheel Division. Hanschen's 48 total points lead that circuit by a mile. He is also way out front in rushing with 514 yards and an average gain of 10.1 yards.

South Pemiscot's Allen McKay is the passing leader, and teammate James Cooper leads the division's receivers.

SeMo state faces 'super team'

CAPE GIRARDEAU — When Nicholls State University and Southeast Missouri State University clash at Houck Stadium here at 8 Saturday night, it will be a battle of the unbeaten versus the winless.

The Colonels from Thibodaux, La., have brushed their way by the University of Tennessee -- Martin,Jacksonville, Ala., State, and Troy, Ala., State.

Meanwhile, the Indians have bowed to Arkansas Tech, Delta State, and the University of Evansville and have yet to enjoy a lead over an opponent.

Later this fall, Nicholls State will play in the New Orleans' Superdome and, to Southeast Missouri State Coach Jim Lohr, that seems fitting. The Colonels have a "super" team, he said, and it will take a "super" effort for the Tribe to have a chance Saturday night.

"They're probably the best team ever to play on our field," Coach Lohr explained. "They're tough and aggressive. It's hard to describe. Let me put it this way. They run better than Delta, pass better than Delta, block better than Delta, and their defense is better than Delta's."

Delta State, like Nicholls State a member of the gulf South Conference, blasted the Indians 41-10 two weeks ago.

Coach Lohr hopes the return of quarterback Rick Wieser to Southeast Missouri State's starting lineup will provide the spark his club needs going into the Nicholls State game. Wieser, a senior from Topeka, Kan., has been sidelined the first three games of the season with a fractured bone in his throwing hand.

The Indian coach has concluded this is the principal reason his offensive unit has been inept this season.

"We're a triple-option offense," he declared, "and we haven't had an experienced triple-otion quarterback."

In the first three games the Tribe used freshman Maurice Tolson of East St. Louis, Ill., and sophonore Don Backfisch of Dexter as signal callers. Except for a time against Delta State when Tolson was impressive, neither has had much success.

"They're good athletes," Coach Lohr said, "but it takes time to learn the triple option. Right now, they're the most frustrated members of the team."

Other than the insertion of Wieser into the starting lineup, Coach Lohr plans no changes in personnel for Saturday night's game. "We're down mentally," he acknowledged, 'but we've just got to realize that nobody else can get the job done for us. We have to do it ourselves."

The Southeast Missouri State offense is averaging only 84.0 yards rushing per game and a meager 88.3 yards passing. Nicholls State, on the other hand, is gaining 176.0 yards per game on the ground and 94.3 through the air, and last week two Colonels' backs rushed for more than 100 yards each.

They were junior tailback Steve Stropolo of New Orleans, who gained 104 yards, and junior fullback Rickey Lovell of Houma, La., who got 101. Stropolo has gained more than, 1000 yards in his career, while Lovell is currently the squad's rushing leader, gaining 4.3 yards per carry.

Saturday's game will feature two of the top punters in the country. Southeast Missouri State's Mike Wood, a junior from Kirkwood, is averaging 45.3 yards per boot. Nicholls State's Terry Magee, a senior from Bogalusa, La., is not far behind with a 43.9 average. Magee and Wood also kick extra points and field goals, and each his team in scoring.

Nicholls State, coached by Bill Clements, who is in his second year, has fielded a football team only since 1972 and has not met Southeast Missouri State previously.

Following Saturday's game Southeast Missouri State will begin preparations for the beginning of MIAA action. The Indians are at home on Oct. 11 against the University of Missouri -- Rolla.

BASKETBALL DRILLS OPEN

While Southeast Missouri's high school football season approaches its midway point Friday, basketball's begin to thump the hardwoods of non-football schools.

Basketball drills officially opened at more than 50 schools throughout the Bootheel Wednesday, the first official day of drills allowed by the Missouri State High School Activities Association.

And the big question often offered is...What can Southeast Missouri do for an enchor? Three of the district teams emerged as state champs last March to set a president and hard act to follow.

Charleston, Lilbourn and Advance swept to state titles in their respective class 3A, 2A and 1A divisions and face an uphill assignment to repeat the feat.

We'll begin our visits to the area schools next week and hopefully will be able to report a sweep of next year's state tournaments.

BICENTENNIAL MEDAL

There is a new twist to that coin you see being flipped before most college football games this fall. In fact, officials could be asking team captains if they want Paul Revere or the Minutemen, instead of heads or tails.

The coin used is likely to be the official 1975 Bicentennial commemorative medal, thanks to the efforts of the National Collegiate Athletic Association (NCAA) and a donation from the International Paper Company of New York.

The medal commemorates the famous ride of Paul Revere and depicts the Minuteman Statue on Lexington Common as a tribute to the small band of volunteers who "fired the shot heard round the world."

The NCAA, a member of the National Bicentennial Sports Alliance (NBSA), is encouraging all member schools to use the medal to call attention to its availability. International Paper is picking up the cost of providing the medals to the schools.

The medal is issued by the American Revolution Bicentennial Administration (ARBA) and produced by the United States Mint. The ARBA also sponsors the NBSA as a means of stimulating and encouraging participation in the Bicentennial.

Net revenues from the sale of the medals are used primarily to support state and local Bicentennial programs around the nation.

Available in bronze ($3.50) and silver ($15.00), the medals can be ordered by sending a check or money order to: ARBA, P.O. Box 1976, San Francisco, California 94101.

Order forms for official 1975 commemoratives can be obtained from local chapters of the Disabled American Veterans, who have joined with the ARBA to help raise funds for Bicentennial projects and programs.

SPARKY ANDERSON

CINCINNATI (AP) — Sparky Anderson, testy over speculation that his job could be in jeopardy if the Cincinnati Reds stumble in post-season play, says he's weary f second guessing by the press and public.

"I could care less what the writers—or the fans—think of me," said Anderson, who hopes to end Cincinnati's 35-year world championship drought.

"You don't belong up here if you worry about losing your job," said the Reds' white-haired manager, in a rare combative mood.

The Reds, who stormed to an incredible 20-game margin over defending National League champion Los Angeles, are readying for their next text: a best-of-five playoff series against potent Pittsburgh for the NL title.

Cincinnati has suffered three crushing post-season defeats in the past five years after amassing the best record in baseball during that span. Anderson said press attacks on members of his profession have left him wondering whether it pays to be a nice guy. He said he no longer reads the sports pages because of critical articles.

"The only thing I read is the box scores. I only believe 50 per cent of what I read, then divide that by 20 and go from there. I realize everything has to be glamorous and flary, but I've been misquoted so many times I'm sick of it. So much of it is trash," he said.

Anderson, who at age 41 has managed the Reds to the winningest NL record since 1907, says the second-guessers have taken the fun out of the job.

"I can't walk into the office of a doctor, a lawyer or a sports writer and do their jobs. Why do they think they can manage?" he asked incredulously.

"I'm just George Anderson and I don't know any other way to be. I don't put any value on money or in wearing a major league uniform," he said.

He finds it galling that winning managers reap the glory and the losers are branded incompetent.

"Is Walter Alston any dumber because he didn't win this year? Am I smarter? Hell no. It's because we were good enough to win this year."

He said Philadelphia Manager Danny Ozark is a case of negative press. Ozark has weathered a critical press to sign a new contract.

"Can you tell me that a writer who rips him knows more about baseball than Danny? I won't tolerate someone who gets personal with me or my players. I's would whip him—or he would whip me," said Anderson.

DANNY MURTAUGH

PITTSBURGH (AP) — After each baseball season, Danny Murtaugh sits down with his family to decide whether to return as manager of the Pittsburgh Pirates.

He laughed Wednesday at the notion that his son, Tim, may soon suggest he devote fulltime to making home movies of his grandchildren.

You see, Tim Murtaugh was recently named manager of the Charleston, W.Va., Charlies and, at age 31, he has climbed to the top of the Pirates' farm system.

"We all get that personal satisfaction from having a son follow in the father's footsteps," the 57-year-old father said while awaiting the National League playoffs in Cincinnati.

It's anybody's guess what the future holds for Tim Murtaugh, though his rapid climb to the Class AAA International League will surely prompt speculation.

Of course, speculation has never caused much concern to his father. Each year, he is prodded about whether he'll retire. Each year, he waits until after the season to make his announcement. This year is no differennt. "I have no definite plans yet,' Murtaugh said.

General Manager Joe Brown has said Danny Murtaugh can manage the Pirates as long as he wishes.

Asked about the promotion of Tim Murtaugh, Brown said the decision was was made solely by Harding Peterson, director of the Pirates' farm system.

However, Brown has known Tim Murtaugh since he was a child, and he has watched his progress as a manager.

"Everyone is his own man, everyone is different to an extent, but I would say Tim is similar to Danny as far as being low-key, not flashy, and in the way he handles problems," Brown said.

That ability to maintain an even keel has been Danny Murtaugh's main strength as a manager, he added. "He minimizes the high points and the low points, and he only celebrates victory after it's really earned...and he has earned many victories," Brown said.

"We talk baseball when we're together, sure" Danny said of his son , "but I can't really say I know a whole lot about Tim's approach to the game. And since he's in the minors, his job is really different from mine."

After a playing career that included four seasons as a Pirate second baseman, Danny Murtaugh got his managing start in New Orleans, where his picture still hangs at the Home Plate Cafe.

"I spent quite a few hours playing the pinball machines at that place," he recalled.

Later in his rocking chair, Murtaugh glanced at a newspaper article about the death of his friend and colleague, Casey Stengel.

"You know, sometimes Casey would use lefties against lefties to pinch hit and do other things that might have seemed strange at the time," Murtaugh said,

"But when you talked to him later, you always found out that he had very sound reasons for everything he did. He was an excellent manager."

DARRELL JOHNSON

BOSTON (AP) — The scene was typical of any winning game. Manager Darrell Johnson stretched and smiled when the news came through that the Boston Red Sox had won the American League East championship.

"I'm just as excited as anybody else, but I just don't show it," Johnson said, still grinning. "It's my nature. My wife has called me 'Stoney' for years."

Johnson, just turned 48 and a former reserve catcher in a major league career which spanned just 134 games with seven clubs, is low-keyed all the way, pleasant and patient with all who approach him.

He shows traces of gray in his well-trimmed hair. His stature is that of an athlete, or one whose playing career has just ended. His clothes range from conservative to sporty, never overly mod.

Johnson's ways are deliberate. He doesn't rush a decision if it can be helped. Patience is one of his top attributes. He seeks advice from coaches and others, and weighs it. He has a temper, but it ignites only when he has to support his players on the field.

"You do what you have to do," Johnson says with a shrug. "No one likes to take the heat at any time, especially me. But there are occasions you can't help it. You have to try to help the team, not hurt it."

Johnson and the Red Sox turned things around this year after his rookie season as a major league manager in 1974. He wasn't mugged in a robbery attempt at a motel room and the Red Sox didn't blow any seven-game lead—both of which happened last year.

The Red Sox won the pennant under rookie Manager Dick Williams in 1967. The next year Williams hired his old friend Darrell as pitching coach. Williams was fired at the tail end of the 1969 campaign, but the Red Sox kept Johnson as a minor league pitching coach and scout for the 1970 campaign.

Johnson's 1974 Red Sox led the AL East by seven games with six weeks to play. Then came a whopping collapse. Plagued by injuries, the Red Sox' offense went into a deep freeze. The team finished seven games behind Baltimore—in third place.

North clash highlights 11 game district schedule

A big conference clash between Poplar Bluff and Jackson and a handful of out-of-state contests highlight a big 11-game high school football schedule for this Friday night.

Both the Indians and the Mules are undefeated at 4-0 and both clubs are ranked fourth statewide in their respective classifications. Poplar Bluff is already 2-0 in conference play, while the Indians won their only league contest. Both clubs have displayed explosive offenses and stingy defenses. The game will be played at Jackson.

Perryville and Charleston will both be looking for their first conference victory when the Bluejays host the Pirates in the only other Northern Division game.

Southern Division co-leaders East Prairie and Caruthersville will seek to remain undefeated. The Tigers host Malden while the Eagles travel to Portageville.

The most interesting non-conference games send Cape Central to Paducah, Ky. and Wentzville to Sikeston. The Tigers suffered an embarrassing loss to Carbondale last week and will be out to try to put things back together against perennial Bluegrass State power Paducah Tilghman. And the Sikeston Bulldogs will try to record their third win in a row at home against the Indians of the Gateway Conference.

Dexter hosts Hayti in a battle between two winless squads. The Bearcats have been plagued with injuries in what was already a rebuilding year and have yet to score a point.

In other Friday night games, Paragould, Ark. is at Kennett, Chaffee goes to Illmo-Scott City, Doniphan visits Pocahontas, Ark. and South Pemiscot hosts Piggott, Ark.

Valle athlete leads MIAA

With a third of the 1975 college football season history, certain statistical categories are starting to take definite shape in the Missouri Intercollegiate Athletic Association.

Southwest Missouri State's Gino Travline moved in front of the league's ballcarriers with a 115 yard performance in last weekend's 7-7 deadlock against Eastern Illinois. The junior fullback from Gary, Ind. has 375 yards on 83 carries for a 4.5 average per carry.

A pair of Northwest Missouri State runners are early threats to Travline's lead. Freshman Dan Montgomery, out of Parkway North High School in St. Louis, has gained 292 yards while teammate Steve Miller, a junior from Kansas City, has garnered 219.

Missouri-Rolla quarterback Greg Haug, who prepped at Valle High in Ste. Genevieve, appears on his way to topping the MIAA's passing categories for the second season in a row. His 117 attempts, 66 completions, .564 pass completion percentage, 784 yards and four touchdowns are currently being challenged only by Northeast Missouri State's Tom Williamson (Unionville).

Haug's biggest booster in the completion department is UMR receiver Stu Duinlop. The Springfield Parkview graduate has pulled down 32 passes for 303 yards.

An interesting stat match is occurring in the punting category. Mike Wood of Southeast Missouri State is in the process of unseating Central Missouri State's Bill Mullis as the conference's "golden toe". Mullis, the Warrensburg athlete who paced all MIAA punters in 1974, is booting them for an average of 4.2 yards less (45.2 to 41.0) than Wood, a native of Kirkwood.

A pair of Northeast Missouri State return specialists have been making a name for themselves this season.

Mike Laususe, a product of Normandy High, in St. Louis, has brought back six kickoffs for 254 yards (42.3 average). In the Bulldogs' 45-18 win over Missouri Western last Saturday, Laususe scored touchdowns on KO returns of 89 and 86 yards.

That same game saw Gary Evans, from Mendon, Ill., intercept three passes for 108 yards, an average of 36 yards a theft.

Players of the Week

EDITOR'S NOTE: Due to the similarity of the statistics, performances and team outcomes, two players each were selected on offense and defense.

OFFENSE - Greg Haug, University of Missouri-Rolla: Quarterback Greg Haug completed 26 (a new UMR record) of 38 passes for 222 yards in the Miner's 20-20 tie last weekend with Kansas State College - Pittsburg. The Ste. Genevieve native tossed two TD aerials and ran for another.

Stu Dunlop, University of Missouri- Rolla: UMR wide receiver Stu Dunlop flagged down 15 passes for 110 yards and caught a pair of TD flips. The Springfield Parkview grad's second scoring catch came with seconds left in Saturday's game to knot the score at 20-20.

DEFENSE - Marti Rave, Northeast Missouri State: Marti Rave, a sophomore linebacker from Earlville, Ill., produced six solo tackles, 15 assists and one pass interception in Northeast Missouri's 45-18 triumph over Missouri Western.

Gary Coppinger, Northwest Missouri State: A soph lineabacker from Aquinas High School in St. Louis, Coppinger recorded seven unassisted tackles, 14 assists and one fumble recovery in Northwest Missouri's 17-6 win against Mankato State.

Big Red entertain Giants Sunday

ST. LOUIS, Mo. -- Frustrated by an overtime defeat to the Dallas Cowboys, the St. Louis Football Cardinals return home to take on NFC Eastern Division opponent the New York Giants on Sunday. Kickoff is set for 1:05 p.m. (CDT) in Busch Memorial Stadium.

The Cardinals will have to bounce back from a disappointing 37-31 defeat to the Dallas Cowboys in an exciting overtime game in Texas Stadium. It was the first overtime game in the Big Red's history and came after the Cardinals had rallied from a 31-17 deficit in the fourth quarter of regulation time.

The Giants, playing their third of three straight season-opening division road games, where stopped bythe Washington Redskins, 49-13, last week in Washington after opening their season with a victory over the Philadelphia EAgles.

The NFC East's two undefeated teams, meanwhile, will both be on the road -- Dallas (2-0) visiting Detroit in a Monday night game and Washington (2-0) taking on the Eagle in Philadelphia.

To defeat the Giants, a team that gave the Cardinals two tough games last year before losing, St. Louis must bounce back from the emotional defeat to the Cowboys, achieved on a three-yard touchdown pass from quarterback Roger Staubach to tight end Billy Joe DuPree with 7:07 left in the overtime.

After scoring twice in the fourth quarter to gain a 31-31 tie -- the final score a 37-yard touchdown pass from quarterback Jim Hart to wide receiver Mel Gray, the Cardinals won the overtime coin toss, took the kickoff and moved to the Dallas 26-yard line, when on a second-down pass play, Cowboy linebacker LeRoy Jordan intercepted Hart's pass and returned it 38 yards to the Cardinals' 37.

It took Dallas nine plays to go the 37 yards for the winningscore. The final pass was Staubach's 23rd completion in 34 attempts, and gave him 307 passing yards. Hart had completed 15 of 32 passes for 314 yards and four touchdowns, equally his career one-game high.

In all, the teams combined for 880 total yards, with Dallas winning the battle, 448-432. Hart's TD completions were 80 yards to wide receiver Earl Thomas, 37 and 23-yarders to Gray and a 35-yarder to tight end Jackie Smith. For Smith, it was his 38th career TD reception -- tying him with Bobby Joe Conrad as the second highest total in team history.

Last year, the Cardinals defeated the Giants twice but not after big scares. The Big Red won in the season's 11th week, 23-21, in New Haven, Conn., on Jim Bakken's 36-yard field goal with three seconds to play. In the last week of the season, the Giants led 14-0 at halftime but the Cardinals roared back for a 26-14 victory and the NFC East title.

The Cardinals and Giants will meet again in three weeks-- on Saturday, October 25 at Shea Stadium in New York. Itr will be the first time St. Louis has ever played in Shea Stadium.

Next week, the Cardinals will have another rugged road assignment -- taking on the Washington Redskins in a Monday night game. Then the Big Red return to St. Louis on October 19 to take on the Philadelphia Eagles

NFL Congress

WASHINGTON (AP) — Owners of National Football League teams are telling Congress their side of the labor dispute between the teams and the players.

Representatives of the executive committee of the NFL's Management Council were to testify today before the House subcommittee on labor-management relations chaired by Rep. Frank Thompson Jr., D-N.J.

The panel called the hearings to determine whether new legislation should be recommended to help resolve disputes between the owners and the players.

Representatives of the players testified before the subcommittee on Monday. Thompson said then that legislation to expedite cases brought by athletes before the National Labor Relations Board might be in order but that the panel first wanted to hear from the owners.

Golfers bow

The SHS girls golf team opened their 1975 season Tuesday afternoon, losing to a good Cape Central squad 221-243.

Cindy Sander of the Tigers was medalist, firing a nine-hole total of 51. Tanya Hesselrode had the low score for Sikeston, shooting a 57. Beth Hambrick shot a 58, Lisa Wasson scored 61 and Tammy Houchin carded a 67.

The match was the third of the season for the Central team.

Sikeston will host the same Tiger squad next Monday on the Sikeston Country Club course. The Bulldogs are coached by Mrs. Rosalie Snider.

Team leader

COLUMBIA — Former Dexter High Schooltrack and cross country star Buddy Lawrence is the captain of this year's University of Missouri cross country squad.

The team lost its first meet last week, dropping a 26-30 decision to a powerful illinois team. Lawrence finished fourth in that meet with a time of 24:59, his best on the Mizzou course. Nationally acclaimed Illinois star Craig Virgin was first.

Lawrence is a senior at the University and has lettered the past three years. The 1972 graduate of Dexter High School is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Yewell Lawrence of Dexter.

The Missouri squad is coached by Robin Lingle. The Tigers will host the Missouri Intercollegiate cross country championship this Saturday at 11:00 a.m.

Rebels win

ESSEX — The Richland Rebels girls volleyball squad continued to fly high Tuesday evening as they came from behind to down Puxico in two out of three games.

The Rebs dropped the opener of the match by the lopsided score of 15-12. But they rallied to capture the last two games 15-6 and 15-2, with Mary Ann Williamson leading the way. Williamson scored 12 points, in addition to several saves.

The Rebels now are 4-1.

The Richland B team remained undefeated by sweeping the Injuns 15-11 and 15-4. Theresa Kinder and Deborah Hampton paced the Richland effort.

The Rebels will be back in action tonight when they host Advance.

GOLF

BARRINGTON, R.I. — Mrs. Philip J. Cudone of Myrtle Beach, S.C. and Mrs. Mark A. Porter of Cinnaminson, N.J. were tied for the lead of the 14th USGA Senior Women's Golf Championship with first-round 79s.

A good word for Kissinger

By JOHN PINKERMAN
Editor,
Copley News Service

Maybe his odd assortment of enemies will stay off Henry Kissinger's back for a short time.

The fragile nature of the Egyptian-Israeli agreement notwithstanding, the secretary of state has done it again, and it would seem that he deserves the heartfelt thanks of all peace-loving people in the world, including his across-the-board (extreme rightists to vocal left-wingers) critics in the United States.

Perhaps Kissinger's premarital night life exhibitions had something to do with building up his foes — who quite properly may have looked for more dignity from the secretary of state.

Perhaps the lone fact that he was a Harvard man had something to do with the ultra-conservatives turning their backs on him. Perhaps his long and useful association with Vice President Nelson Rockefeller frightened a segment of the sizable anti-Rockefeller clique.

Compared to his accomplishments and his devotion to his country those bases of criticism should have very little standing among clear thinking people — people who believe in peace and people who are realistic enough to understand that America has a stake in almost any development almost anyplace in the world.

And, considering what Kissinger has accomplished, consider the alternatives if he had failed — or, worse, if he had never tried.

This German-born Jew (May 27, 1923) came as an immigrant to the United States in 1938.

His record since arrival should be a model for any American, native or foreign born. He served in the Army from 1943 to '46. He studied at Harvard, won a doctor's degree and taught at the university.

In government and private service, he has labored in the vineyards and in the higher echelons. He worked in the Operations Research Office, with the Psychological Strategic Board, has been director of the Study Group on Nuclear Weapons and Foreign Relations, has been a consultant to the Weapons System Evaluation Group of the Joint Chiefs of Staff. He has been director of the National Security Council, and now for several years secretary of state.

Richard Nixon got the credit but it really was Kissinger who arranged the detente with Mao Tse-tung and Red China.

If you choose to believe this is a bad deal and Kissinger (or Nixon) should get blame not credit, consider the alternative. The alternative would have been a tightening instead of a loosening of tensions. And, up to now anyway, Kissinger's skill made this detente possible without America turning its back on the Republic of China on Taiwan.

Kissinger also led the way in the detente with Moscow, if you consider that a plus. If you think it is a minus, again consider the alternative. The alternative well might have been an impossible confrontation between the world's two atomic war giants — in the Mideast, where Kissinger's skill is most apparent, and in many other areas of the world. It is an uneasy peace the United States enjoys with Russia, but it is an improvement over the worst days of the Cold War.

Most Americans consider Vietnam a dark chapter in U.S. history, but without Kissinger's tireless and often discouraging negotiations with North Vietnam, U.S. soldiers might still be dying in that faraway land. His accomplishment was not the ultimate, but it eliminated the daily U.S. casualty lists, a rather depressing alternative.

Now, he has delivered in the shuttle diplomacy that failed last March but succeeded after more exhausting negotiations in Cairo, Alexandria, Jerusalem and Tel Aviv. It is not an ideal solution but it is preferable to an alternative of war — a war that certainly would bring more energy crises to America and perhaps even that unthinkable nuclear confrontation between Washington and Moscow.

Henry Kissinger is a loyal and most skillful American diplomat. He deserves the Nobel Prize for Peace he received for Vietnam. He also deserves the thanks of all Americans.

Readers make a newspaper interesting

By PAT GROJEAN

Think of someone you really enjoy talking to or being with or that you find just plain fascinating. Now, sit down at a telephone and give me a call.

Really -- I'm serious! As feature editor, I am always searcing for people to talk to about their lives, their hobbies or just something they do or have done which is out of the ordinary.

As just one person, it is hard to know about every interesting person, so I — and the rest of the newsstaff — must rely on you out there in readerland to help us.

Actually, it is you, the readers, that make the paper interesting by telling us things we may not know, or telling us about people who would make interesting features.

I won't promise to get around to everyone real quickly, because stories often take time to do, but I would be thrilled to hear your ideas. And I'm sure many out there have some good ideas. Maybe, it is just something you would like to see a story about or that you know of a possible starting place for a story.

Maybe you know someone who has done something unusual during their lives ... like the wonderful woman, Mrs. Elder, who I did a story on a couple of years ago and who had played the piano during silent movie days in Sikeston.

Maybe someone you are acquainted with knows a piece of interesting history about the area or someone who has a rather unusual hobby or does something rather amazing for his or her age -- young or old--or abilities. There are endless possibilities. I just need your help and will welcome ideas.

It always helps to know what our readers are interested in, and the only way to know that is to hear from you.

In the almost three years I've been feature editor, I've learned many things, from how school lunches are planned to all about polled Herefords and soybean cyst nematodes – subjects which I previously knew nothing about. So, you see, I'm wide open for new ideas and new adventures for myself and readers.

I just wish I could take care of all those terrific ideas I know you will be sending me. All I can say is I will do my best and will probably pass some of them along to other staff members.

Oh -- by the way, my telephone numbr is 471-1137 or you can write me or any staff member in care of The Daily Standard.

I'm sitting here fight now -- unless I'm outdoing a story -- waiting to hear from you. So, get busy and think (— and thanks in advance)!
